POLITICAL NOTES.

—The people are anxiously waiting for those flush and easy times promised us if the Democrats carried the election.

—Preparing for their future comfort. The Ohio Democracy are giving much attention to the improvement of the State penitentiary.

—It is understood that if the Pennsylvania Rail road succeeds in securing the election of Coffee Pot Wallace to the United States Senator, that Adam Hoy is to succeed him to the state Senate from this district. How would the Meek Alexander wing of the party like a set up of this kind?

—All corrections being made that would seem to be required by later returns, the elections to the House in the next Congress are: 104 Republicans. 171 Democrats. The seats of fifteen Republican members are known to be contested, and contests for a number of Democratic seats are probable.

—It is affirmed that a well organized plan is on foot among the Democratic politicians of New York to open the doors of Tweed's prison for him to go out. Nothing is more likely. The devil having come to his own it would be the height of Satanic ingratitude not to free so effective a privy counsellor from his chains.

—The straight-laced male old women of Boston still refuse to admit ladies to membership of the school boards of that city, no matter how well qualified for such positions they may be. The egotistical superciliousness of the average Boston electors is ten times as strong as the argum nts of reason. You couldn't tear his sense of superiority out of him with a team of wild horses. If the great reformer, Reuben Bacon of Bedford, Mass., is still idle, he should go and see if he cannot enlighten those high toned barbarians.

—The New York Bulletin gives a mass of statistics showing that the export of hogs from this country to Europe has increased over six fold within the short period of five years. This is one of the most remarkable developments of export trade that has occurred within our history. In one single class of products we have been enabled to increase our foreign shipments by fifty million dollars within four years; and this without any effort or speculative excitement. It is not easy to over estimate the importance of this development of our agricultural industries.

—The election in Tennessee was characterized by a peculiar as well as curious feature—the popular vote taken on the Senatorship. Andrew Johnson, who held that Senators should be elected by the direct vote of the people proposed that Democrats, while voting for State officers, should at the same time cast an extra ballot indicating their choice for United States Senator. The returns from Memphis show that the vote is ten to one in favor of the ex-President, and it is probable that the result in Central and East Tennessee is in the same proportion. And yet it is very doubtful if he will be the choice of the Legislature. His campaign has been very bitter and personal, especially his attack upon Governor Brown.

—Describing a colony of Poles, at Laporte, Indiana, a correspondent says: "The new Polish arrival has an unpleasant, cringing way of doffing his hat that makes you think of monarchy. The men shake hands when they meet, and salute each other, in the name of the Mother of All Sorrowing, at parting. A few of them, if the very quintessence of truth were known, doubt that this is the best country lighted by the sun. They vote any ticket that happens to fall in their hands, and they do it with an unconcern which can only come from an unequivocal incomprehension of its meaning. When they enter a grocery they call for the best of what they want, and pay for it without questioning the price. They buy the best sugar, the best coffee, the best alcohol, and bow to the salesman on leaving the room. They take to the woods, on first coming to America, as naturally as babies take the measles, or muskrats to the water."

GOOD MEN FOR OFFICE.

The Democratic papers all over the country have had a great deal to say about corruption and the election of bad men to office. The people now have an opportunity to see how sincere they have been in making these charges. When the Republican party has elected bad men to office, or been guilty of legislation not in the interest of the people, the Republican press has always had the independence to rebuke its leaders and expose the fraud. The Democracy has never pursued this policy in the past, nor have we any reason to suppose they will adopt so commendable a course. The Democratic papers have not the independence to pursue such a course. The fear of hurting the success of the party is always sufficient to prevent a menial press from exposing any corruption or wrong doing that may be done by any of their leaders. It is sometimes said that, "to the pure all things are pure." Certain it is that there is no one so ready to suspect another of wrong as one who is himself corrupt or dishonest, and this disposition of our adversaries to charge that corruption has been carried on in all cases for the last fifteen years, sometimes leads them to make some very foolish remarks, that is, unless they desire to charge corruption upon themselves, which they never do intentionally.

Mr. Wickham, the newly elected Democratic Mayor of New York, took occasion to remark, when recently sworn in, that "there had not been an honest election in the metropolis, until the last one, for the period of fifteen years." Mr. Wickham ought to know. He is a Democrat, and the city has been Democratic in all the fifteen years he refers to. It gave enormous and very dishonest Democratic majorities in 1868 and 1870, by the aid of which the Democrats carried the State, also; and if the election this year, has been honestly conducted, it was solely because a Republican Legislature enacted an election law under which cheating was practically impossible.

No thanks are therefore due to the Democratic party for the honest election, nor will it be their fault if the law under which his first honest election has been held, is not repealed this winter by the Democratic Legislature, and we doubt if the Democratic press has the manliness or independence to protest against such action. As we have said before, we like the Republican party for the individual independence of its members and press. They have always shown a disposition to criticise the doings of their public servants and rebuke wrong doing wherever it is found; and whenever a Republican leader, no matter how much beloved by the people, has been found guilty of misdemeanor in office, or to have done any immoral act to disqualify him from being a good officer, the people have allowed him to stay at home. But how is it with our opponents? We could cite numberless instances of their policy, but out of the hundreds at our command we will only mention the following:

The Republicans of Kentucky, during the canvass of that State last summer for the election of a Clerk of the Court of Appeals, showed beyond question that Jones, the Democratic candidate, was a duelist, and constitutionally ineligible to office. Yet the Democrats persisted in keeping him in the field, and elected him by 50,000 majority. The State Board of Canvassers have just declared their verdict upon an appeal made to them, and they decide that Jones is clearly ineligible to office, thus vindicating the opposition made to him by the Republicans, on account of his having been guilty of a crime which disfranchised him.

In Ohio, likewise, the Democrats, at the October election, put up an habitual drunkard as their candidate for Supreme Judge, and elected him by the party majority. His drunkenness did not cost him a hundred votes, all told.

These two instances are fair illustrations of the way the Democrats heed the demand of "good men for office." They put up, in the cases above mentioned, the worst men they had, and the party responded by electing them. Can we draw any other conclusion from this, than, that their continual cry of "good men for office," and the charge of corruption is raised to draw attention away from themselves, and that they think more of party success than of honest officials and good government?

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

A correspondent of the Wellsville Reporter tells the following story:

"On Monday, November 9th, about noon, as regular train 27 was leaving Phillipsburg, N. J., and running at about the rate of 12 miles an hour, an old lady named Mrs. McLaughlin, of Friendship, was about crossing the railroad track at the first highway crossing west of the railroad bridge and west of Phillipsburg station, and she being somewhat deaf and not seeing or hearing the approaching train, was about half way across the track when the pilot or cow-catcher struck her, which must have thrown her six or eight feet high, as she alighted upon the pilot, where she was found quietly seated, but not until the train was nearing Belvidere station, when the engineer saw the ribbons on her bonnet flying in front of the boiler, which at once attracted his attention; and upon going to see from whence came the ribbons, he found the old lady seated upon the pilot, and so badly frightend that she could hardly move at all. The train was stopped at Belvidere when the lady was removed from the pilot, and she was overjoyed to learn that she was not seriously injured, being only slightly bruised and having her right ankle sprained —Mail advices from China say that the Imperial Government is at last taking preliminary steps toward the opening of the mines in the northern part of the Empire. The Chinese entertain the most bigoted superstitions in regard to mining, believing that any disturbance of the bowels of the earth would result in a general breaking loose of all the devils confined in the Plutonic regions. The experiment is to be tried in the Province of Chih-li, where are rich beds of coal and iron. Foreign machinery is to be used, and as there are no native engineers, the people of Chih-li, will be abundantly sacred by "foreign devils," (as they call all strangers,) in addition to those which are to come up from the coal mines.

——We learn that the contract between R H. Duncan and Messrs Wagner, Wilson & McFarland for the purchase of his valuable property at Spring Mills has fallen through owing to a very slight difference btween them—respecting a question of interest—we understand that R. H. Duncan now offers the property to the highest bidder upon condition—as regards terms of payment —much more favorable to a purchaser, than those embodied in the former arangement. If correctly informed a term of several years can be had to meet instalments and will be sold as a whole or in detail. —Reporter.

——Because Fred Kurtz married a rich wife and lives on the interest of her money, he has nothing to do at present but publish editorials written by Bellefonte lawyers and poke sickly fun at us. This may be amusement for Fred, but we deeply pity the other side of the house.

——Corpernicus, the discoverer of the true system of Astronomy, never saw as many stars, during his lifetime, as the drunken man did when he tumbled head foremost down the embankment in the rear of the Presbyterian church on Saterday afternoon.

OUR ASSOCIATED PRESS LETTER.

PHILADELPHIA, December 1, 1874.

A MISTAKEN POLICY.

The Centennial managers appear to entertain the belief that the most effectual way to reach the public eye, and to carry popular conviction, is by circulars, pamphlets, pictures and photographs. They may be entirely right, and I may be wholly wrong in the opinion, that one hundred dollars judiciously expended in newspaper advertising will accomplish more than a thousand dollars expended in circulars and the postage required to mail them.

The newspapers in this city have had scarcely any advertising from the Managers of the Centennial; from patriotic motives each journalist in Philadelphia has done his utmost to further the interests of the Exhibition, and the result is 95 per cent of the subscriptions to the Centennial stock has been received from Philadelphians; and this in face of the fact that thousands of dollars have been expended in picture books, embellished circulars and other costly printed matter, ought to cause the Managers to consider if such a system of advertising is wisest, before other thousands of dollars are expended in the same direction.

To publish a column appeal in Mr. Child's Public Ledger would not cost a greater sum than $90, and the appeal would reach 90,000 subscribers. To publish the same address in circular form, and mail it to that number of people would cost no less than $1,500. The newspaper appeal would reach the reader with a respectable sponsor, while the circular would enter the house as a sort of "bastard" that but few would respect, even though it wore the gaudiest dress in which the printer's art could decorate it.

PENNSYLVANIA'S NEXT GOVERNOR.

The majority of Mr. Latta over Mr. Olmsted for Lieutenant Governor s 4,679; the vote for the temperance nominee being 4,628, gives Mr. Latta, the Democratic candidate, a clear majority of 51 votes. Taking advantage of the closeness of this vote, the friends of Ex-Gov. Curtin are laboring industriously to make that gentleman the Democratic candidate for Governor in 1875. And I must confess there is a degree of encouragement given the movement that leads the more sanguine of the Governor's friends to hope for success. The ablest Republican politician in this city remarked to me this morning that "if Curtin were nominated hundreds of Republicans in each county of the Commonwealth who have been snubbed and soured by Mackey, Quay, and Rutan, would embrance the opportunity to revenge themselves upon these men, and Curtin would sweep the State by 20,000 majority."

Many of the leading Democrats in the State are desirous of recognizing Gov. Curtin's services in the compaign of 1872. This they believe is the opportunity for such recognition; but no action looking to placing Gov. Curtin at the head of the State ticket, one year hence, will be formally taken by the party unless it has the approval of Senator Buckalew and Col. Noyes—the two gentlemen named most prominently in in connection with the Governorship.

HOROSCOPE OF THE SIRES.

The question of Governo Hartranft's success is regarded by the "Fathers" of the Democratic party in this city as an insignificant one compared with the contests for Senators in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, because of the bearing those contests will have upon the Presidential nomination in 1876.

It is conceded that the struggle for the Senatorship in this State will be so bitterly hostile that life-long friendships will be forever severed, and animosities engendered so intensate that Pennsylvania, finding it utterly impossible to concentrate her large delegation upon any one of her eminent citizens, will present no candidate for the Presidency in 1876.

The strife between Governors Parker and Randolph, for the New Jersey Senatorship, while less bitter in its animosities than the contest in this State, is regarded by the "Fathers" as fatal to Parker's prospects for the Presidency, because of the dissension precluding the possibility of his carrying a solid delegation in his interest.

In this connection it is proper to observe that the "Fathers" in casting the political horoscope for 1876, are entirely indifferent as to the feeling the Senatorial struggle in New York may create —New York being practically out of the contest, except so far as her delegation may unite upon any one man—for the reason that New York having three times, within the past 12 years, been honored with Presidential nominations, and three times defeated, her claims, if again presented, will be laid upon the table.

In the canvass to make Mr. Thomas, speaker of the House in 1875, the 'Sires' believe that Maryland will knock 'higher than a kite' her chances of securing the conveted prize for one of her distinguished sons, no matter how loud her cry for a White man's government may be, nor how piteous her appeal that Maryland now for the first time in the history of the country be given a president.

Virginia has no candidate to present, and thus from New England, down along the sea board, to the gulf, the 'fathers' see but one statesman, untrammeled by prejudices and unweighted by local animosities, who is likely to be put forward in 1876, and as in the language of the ablest of the 'Sires' in Pennsylvania, 'that man is Senator Bayard of Delaware, who has no foes to punish, nor debts to pay.'

A NAUGHTY WEEVIL.

When I was a boy, farmers usually looked for weevil only in wheat and were not at all surprised to find the destructive insect there, but for a weevil to be found in a lady's chamber was so great a surprise to a merchant of this city, named Hansom, that an attempt was made to kill him and it well nigh proved successful. It happened thus: Dr. W. H. Weevil is the family physician of the Hansom's and Mrs. H. not feeling as well as usual a few days ago sent for Weevil; after prescribing, the madam felt better and invited the Dr. up stairs to look at the new set of furniture and carpet she had a few days previously purchased for her bed room. While the doctor was admiring the bureau, bedstead, carpet, and other pretty things, Mr. Hansom happened home and his surprise was so great he drew a pistol and shot Weevil in the knee. To save his life the leg has since been amputated, and Hansom committed to jail to await the result of Weevil's injuries as it is possible he may not recover.

Even should Weevil recover, his practice has gone to the dogs for gentlemen's wives who may not be Hansom, rather than shatter his other knee would probably prefer a physician whose tastes do not lead them to examine washstands, bureaus and etc. Physicians say, that carpet is too "thin" for criticism.

The receipts of the Franklin Institute Exhibition recently held in this city were more than $91,000 with expenses less than $35,000 But few gentlemen connected with the Institute were willing to have the Exhibition take place, and the sanction of the Board of Directors was not given until John Baird, Esq., one of our most spirited citizens, succeeded in obtaining a guarantee fund of $25,000 to secure the institute against loss.

The American Iron and Steel Association of this city is authority for the statement that as compared with the year 1873 the decrease in the production of pig iron in this country, is 30 per cent.; in rails 50 per cent; in Bessemer steel rails, 40 per cent.; and in other rolled iron 59 per cent.

The Superintendent of Construction of the new Post-office building in this city, states that it will be the grandest building of the kind the Government has yet erected. In Architectural beauty it will be far ahead of the New York Post office The cost of it will doubtless reach $6,000,000.

The valuation of real estate in this city for taxation purposes is $565,819,995, an increase of $27,004,443, over last years assessment. The tax rate for 1875 has been fixed, by the Finance Committee of Councils, at 2.15-100 per cent.

A special meeting of the Union League was held recently which was attended by nearly all the members of the Club, the object being to officially declare that "the influence and support of the League will be given only to candidates of unexceptionable character and fitness for office" and to urge upon all who desire to success of the Republican party to take part in the delegate elections for candidates to be voted for in February next.

CONTINENTAL SHIN PLASTERS.

From an advance copy of a pamphlet on the "Revolutionary Finance" by Mr. J. W. Schuckers, it appears that the 'Bills of Credit' authorized by the Continental Congress, from June 1775, to November 29th 1779, amounted to $241,552,780, the coin value of which was only $36,367,719. The depreciation did not begin until May 1777, and then three "Continental Dollars" equaled one coin dollar. In November 1779 it required 38½ dollars of "Continental Money" to buy one in silver.

In 1780 the depreciation was more rapid. In February the relative value was 40 to 1, and in December, 75 dollars in "shin plaster money," were worth one Spanish silver dollar.

As the question of inflation is seriously entertained by a number of Western Congressmen I take occasion to reproduce the following, from a Philadelphia merchant, in the Pennsylvania Packet of 1780, "I had money enough to buy a hogstead of sugar, I sold it again and got a good deal more money than it cost me: yet what I sold it for, when I went to market again, would not buy a tierce. I sold that too for a great deal of profit yet the whole of what I sold it for would afterwards buy but a barrel. I have now more money than I ever had, and yet I am not so rich as when I had less."

According to this pamphlet. France loaned the Continental Congress 38,000,000 livres, or $7,037,037 in coin, about one-fifth of the whole amount of coin loaned the government during the struggle for independence.

The Pig Iron manufacturers of Pennsylvania held a meeting during the week, and resolved to lessen the production of pig-iron in order to prevent ruin to the trade. A meeting of all the pig iron manufacturers of the country is to be held here on the 10th day of December, 1874. Twenty-six of the leading establishments of the state were represented.

The young lady who came from New York about two weeks ago to visit her uncle, and who, upon inquiring of a stranger, the address of her relative, was taken to a house of bad repute kept by Mrs. Robinson, has had the satisfaction of securing the conviction of Mrs. Robinson for keeping a disorderly house and of an indecent assault and battery, in aiding the man Johnson, who took the girl there, to force a compliance of his evil design. The miraculous escape of the girl ought to be a warning to unsuspecting strangers to be careful of whom they seek information while visiting this city. The sentence was $1,000 fine, and two years imprisonment at hard labor.

Col. A. K. M'Clure, representing a number of wealthy gentlemen, has purchased a controlling interest in Forney's Press. The paper will be under the editorial management of Col. M'Clure and will be anti-Cameron Republican in politics. J. W. F.

He has been serving in the capacity of watchman ever since the road has been in operation. It is twenty-two years since he smoked or imbibed wine; never swore an oath; never saw a game of cards played except at a hog show; he saved the Philadelphia express from being wrecked, for which the passengers presented him with $50. A LEGEND OF THE ISLE.

Scarlet the maples are turning,
And red in the wine of the vine,
And the Islands are draped with soft fringes
Of Indian summer divine;
And the leaves of the forest seem burning
With flames like the vinter's wine.

The shore with its smooth-washed pebbles,
The surf with its blossoms of spray,
And touching white lips together
In kisses of love; while the day
Bends down with a dreamy languor
To touch the white face of the bay.

And while Autumn is waving red banners,
And the Islands are buried in haze,
Thought brings to my memory a legend
Told here of the ancient days;
A tale of love and of sorrow,
Of devotion cast down by despair.
Of a wife, in a midnight of darkness,
With the dew in her flowing hair,
Going out to a rock-girt headlong
Where the surf lashed white at her feet,
And laying life down in the darkness,
'Neath the surf-lashing white at her feet.

An old, sad, Indian story
Of the fierce red Indian life;
Of a husband's accusing spirit
Insulting a true-souled wife,
With the charges of wrong and desertion,
And her scorning to answer or pray
But going alone in the darkness,
To the shore of the Put-in-Bay,
And placing her sorrow in keeping
Of the Spirit that reigned o'er the Bay.

The waters enfolded her kindly,
And pressed her kindly to its breast,
And her sorrow was lost in the bosom
That gave her eternal rest.
And the morning broke soft and in silence,
And the waters in quiet lay,
While God's own quiet had settled
Down over the shining bay.
And rude hearts beat in sorrow
To the wringing of dusky hands,
As they saw the coal-black tresses,
Laid damp on the shifting sands;
But the soul of the wife had vanished,
And gone to the happy lands.

And now, when the storms are haunting,
With echoes that rocky place,
On that jutting headlands the fishers
O't see a ghastly face,
And they know that the soul of the woman
Rides by in the rushing blast,
And they turn their heads in terror,
Till the rock-girt point is passed.

And at night, when the music is loudest,
And the world made of glitter and gold.
Forget in their joy the sorrows
That are often and ever told
By lips grown white in waiting
And hearts grown sad in fear—
When the blast on the bay is loudest—
Then can one, listening, hear
The wail of a haunting spirit
The cry of a soul in pain
That falls with a mournful music,
Like the patter of autumn rain,
And then do we know that the legions
Of air are swept by in a host—
Keeping time in a measured music
To the wail of the storm-swept ghost!

LOVE.

My bird that will not brood or build,
Long-winged and strong and restless-willed,
Delighting yet to flit and flit
On the tossed sea enjoying it,
Low flying when the storm is stilled.

Lost on the houseless waves alone,
Beyond the dim coast islands gone,
In the low vallies of the sea,
Hid by the watery hills from me,
The steady wings beat on and on.

Uncaring for the dull alarm
The thundering beats that daring form,
Floats through the gates of gray and green,
Now lost in mist and clasped between
The raised sea and the crawling storm.

With wide and never-folded wings,
With no sweet rest from wanderings,
With weariness of life misspent,
From what discovered continent
My love her branch of olive brings?

Come back before the clouds are spilled:
Behold my heart's low ark unfiled,
My window open to admit,
Make happy haste to enter it
Oh Love! before your wings are chilled.

Who shall stay Love, or who repress
The ardor of his willfulness;
Who shall lift up a voice and cry
Across the sea, that Love may fly
In ecstacy to her caress?

I charge you maidens, that you come
And woo my wanderer to his home;
Oh sweet! if yet ere life decline
Some mated bird may come with mine,
Allured along the fields of foam.

Our Story Teller.

KING SOLOMON'S OPAL.

As I was sitting in my library a week or two ago, my daughter Brita—we of the old Swedish blood still cling to the dear old Swedish names—came dancing like a sunbeam into the room. 'Is it not glorious!' exclaimed she, giving into my hand a new opal ring which she had been buying with the accumulated savings of the past year.

'It is a fire opal, papa,' she continued. 'See how the flames flash and quiver in its depths. Oh, it is beautiful! Do you think, papa, that the old fable is true, and that opals really are unlucky?'

I too am a dear lover of opals. In fact, it is about the only stone that I care much for. And as I held up the gem so that the light might shine upon it, and crimson waves flow through its pearly depths, I experienced anew that singular fascination which this mysterious stone has always exerted over me.

'Yes, it is gloriously beautiful, my daughter. It is the type of the highest order of womanhood—women serene and calm on the surface, but with the warm and crimson waves of love and devotion flowing beneath, and rendering them capable of any sacrifice for their husbands, their families, or their God.'

'And they surely are too beautiful to be stones of ill-omen, papa?' reiterated Brita. For I am afraid she is, like most of us, a little superstitious.

'I knew one curious case, my daughter, in which the opal figured—and there it seemed to be an omen of good, a perfect amulet and talisman—but the story is a long one, and I have not time to tell it now. Perhaps some day I will write it out for you.'

'Some day is no day, papa. Will you write it for my next birthday?'

'Why, you little minx, your next birthday is not two weeks off.'

Brita laughed, and then put her arms around my neck and kissed me. 'I should value it so much as a birthday present, papa, and I am impatient to hear the story. Did they get married happily at the end? I should like to know that now.'

'You little witch! I will not tell you. Besides, I have not said there was any lady in the case. It was a very serious matter, I assure you. But you may look for the story on your birthday.'

And, dear reader, here it is—for Brita, and for you.

It was a fine morning in the month of September, and about twenty years ago, when I found myself on a horseback, and approaching the little town of M—, in the southeastern part of Kentucky. Some ten miles back I had made the acquaintance of a fellow-traveler, and we had journeyed on together. He was, like myself a young man—and, unlike me was full of vehemence and ardor. We had not traveled five miles together, before he told me his name, his birthplace, his business, and the name of the gentleman whom he was going to visit, and who lived on the other side of M—, about two miles off.

He had a handsome, daring face, with the blue eyes of some Northern, and the dark hair and skin of some Southern ancestor. As I looked at him, I said to myself—another fine specimen of the American Norman. For the same mixture of Celtic with Saxon or Danish blood, which made the Norman race of old, and gave it a superior force and refinement to either of the parent stocks, is creating in this new world the finest and handsomest race of the earth.

Louis Atherton—as I will call him for the occasion—was no big, bulky knight, such as sat with King Arthur at his Round Table. He was rather below the middle height, for that matter—but he was quick and strong and supple as a panther. He was the blade of Saladin, rather than the great two-handed sword of King Richard. But, as men look at men, he would, if aroused, be an antagonist by no means to be despised.

Talking cheerfully upon commonplace matters, we trotted slowly up to a common country tavern, which stood on the outskirts of M—, and, as the day had been quite warm, and the road dusty, stopped to water our horses, and stretch our limbs a little. Quite a crowd of men of the rougher class were gathered in front of the tavern, and a loud and somewhat angry discussion seemed going on. Dismounting and walking up to the outer circle of the crowd, we saw in the centre an old man, with a small pack in his hands, who was evidently a Jewish peddler—but an uncommonly fine and intelligent looking specimen of his class. He was speaking as we came up addressing the crowd generally, and a huge, stalwart, coarse looking person who seemed half-rowdy and half-gentleman, particularly.

'You asked me whether I was the wandering Jew,' said the peddler, in excited tones. 'I answer you that I am both a wanderer and a Jew.'

'Yes,' interrupted his antagonist, 'a low, mean, treacherous Jew!—who crucified our Saviour; and for which all decent white men are bound to hate them and their very name!'

'And so you, even you, reverence the the name of Jesus of Nazareth?'

'Of course we do, blast your impudence,' replied the ruffianly looking giant, 'do you suppose we are all heathens like yourself in this part of the country. No, d——n me, we are Christians; aren't we boys?'

'You're right thar, old fellow,' cried one of his comrades. 'We don't trouble the church much, you may believe, but we're neither heathens or niggers—we're Christian white men.'

'You are Christians, are you—followers of Jesus Christ? 'Well, who was he?'

'Mind you, you old heathen, none of your impudence now,' shouted out the half-drunken giant, whose name we ascertained afterwards to be Jim Galbraith. 'If you say the first word disrespectful of our Lord and Saviour, may I be shot the moment if I don't drop you like a bag of meal,'

But the old Jew's blood was up, too—and he consulted truth rather than prudence.

'I asked you who was Jesus of Nazareth. As you do not seem to know, I will tell you. Jesus Christ was himself a Jew—one of my own race; and you, who call yourselves by his name, are simply doing honor to a Jew!'

It was amusing to note the look of almost holy horror that passed from one to another of the ignorant crowd, at what they thought this gross falsehood and impiety. Christ a Jew, like the peddler before them!—it was monstrous. It seemed to take a little while for the full force of the assertion to enter the beclouded brain of Jim Galbraith, but when it did, he deliberately stretched out his massive arm, and the old Jew fell to the ground, as one of the crowd afterward said 'as if a horse had kicked him.' Not only this, but seeming to warm in his rage with the exercise of his indignation, he knelt down and began pounding the livid face of the unresisting old man with his ponderous fist.

In a moment, with the rush of a tiger, Atherton sprang through the crowd upon the half-drunken giant, and flung him backward on the ground, away from his victim. 'Are you men and Kentuckians,' exclaimed he, contemptuously to the crowd, 'to see an old man abused like that?'

'He insulted the Saviour,' replied one of them, in a surly tone—while Galbraith rose to his feet and drew a pistol from his pocket. The Jew also rose, and commenced wiping the blood from his white hair, and cut and bruised face.

The affair began now to take on a dangerous aspect, for others of the crowd also drew their pistols, while Atherton and I, with our revolvers in our hands, stood close together by the side of the Jew. Probably a few moments would have ended the whole difficulty, and, be three of us been riddled by bullets, had not a party of gentlemen ridden up, and seeing a disturbance was on foot, stopped to see what was the quarrel.

'Why, Atherton, is that you?' called out a handsome man, who was foremost in the party of new-comers. 'What is the matter?'

'Oh, not much, only I don't like your Kentucky way of treating old men, Colonel.'

'It is a dog of a Jew, Colonel Morgan,' said one of the crowd, 'and he insulted Jesus Christ, said he was nothing but a Jew like himself, the old blasphemer!'

'Why, my good friends and neighbors,' replied the Colonel blandly, while the gentlemen with him burst into a loud laugh, 'Jesus Christ's mother, the Virgin Mary, as every one knows, was a Jew. If you went to church oftener and to the tavern less, Thompson, you would have found that out long ago. Come, Louis, mount—you and your friend—I am bound homeward. They will all be glad to see you, though we did not expect you until to morrow.'

'Colonel Morgan,' said Galbraith, steadying himself, and scowling from beneath his heavy eyebrows at the mirthful gentlemen, 'I hope neither you, nor no other person here means to insinuate that I did not know that our Lord and Saviour was born a Jew, for—'

'Of course not, Mr. Galbraith,' the Colonel hastened to reply, while the laughing gentlemen around him at once became very serious, 'no one could suppose for a moment that you, a gentleman born and bred, could be ignorant of such a well-known fact.'

'I knew it well enough,' continued the giant, 'but I knocked the Jew down because he was impertinent, and as I would treat any other man, Christian or Jew, old or young, who did not keep a civil tongue in his head.'

The Colonel bowed civilly, and turning to Atherton and the others, said, 'Let us ride on, gentlemen.'

'Colonel Morgan,' again broke out the giant, 'I have a word to say to that young friend of yours, before you go.'

I noticed the Colonel's cheek turn pale, but he said nothing, merely looked inquiringly.

'That young gentleman took the liberty of interfering between me and that miserable scoundrel of a Jew. He laid violent hands upon me, and pushed me over on my back in the dirt. Now, he looks like a Northener, and probably does not know yet what we think of such liberties in Kentucky. May I ask you to inform him, that no man can insult a Kentucky Galbraith with impunity and that I shall expect him to give me satisfaction.'

'Oh, pshaw, Galbraith, we must not expect as much of a Northerner as of a Kentuckian,' replied the Colonel, trying to mollify the giant. 'Besides, he is a young man, you see, and young men often act over-hastily.'

'Colonel Morgan,' broke in Atherton hotly, 'I will thank you to let me be the guardian of my own honor. I did interfere to prevent that individual's brutality towards an old, defenceless man, and, if there was the same reason, I should do precisely the same thing again.'

Galbraith smiled grimly. 'You won't crow so loudly about this time to morrow, my young gamecock.'

Atherton curled his lip contemptuously. 'My father was a Southerner, if he did live in the North,' replied he; 'and he taught me that it was better do die, when I could no longer live with honor.'

'Mr. Atherton is going home with me, and can be found at my house at any time,' said Colonel Morgan, and we rode off.

After a few awkward moments of silence, Atherton regained his equanimity, and introduced me to Colonel Morgan as his fellow traveler of a few miles back, while he also took occasion to thank me, for standing by him in what might have been a bloody fray. The Colonel, with the usual generous Western hospitality, invited me at once to come home with them, and stay a day or two to rest myself, and as I was naturally a great deal interested in what was going on, I gladly accepted the invitation.

The conversation soon turned upon what had occurred. Colonel Morgan did not hesitate to express his uneasiness. If Atherton would have been willing to avoid further danger by an ignominious flight, I believe the Colonel, Southerner as he was, would almost have rejoiced at it. For he saw no issue out of the affair, but death for his friend, and how near Atherton was to him, was soon to become apparent to me.

Galbraith, he said, was one of six brothers, all of the same giant mould. They were of tolerably good family, but given to low company, gambling and intemperance, and all were famous for their duelling propensities. In fact they were a terror to the neighborhood on this account, and several of the finest young men of M——, who had been insulted into duels, had already fallen beneath their fatal aim. If it were not for their intemperate habits, to meet them in the field were almost certain death. But, as it was, their hands were growing less steady than formerly, and this gave their opponents a better chance, while it made them rather less impudent and reckless.

At the gate which led to the Colonel's mansion, we parted from his neighbors, who went on to their own houses, each expressing his sympathy as he left, and his desire to afford any aid that he could. If a duel took place, they all promised to be on the ground and see fair play. It seemed that duels were made public occasions of, in M——, and the public were not only at liberty to attend, but were even expected to be present.

As we rode up the avenue, the Colonel questioned Atherton as to his shooting abilities. The latter replied that he was near-sighted, and of course could not shoot at long distances—but at fifteen or twenty feet, he could often hit a button. The Colonel groaned. 'Galbraith,' said he, 'can kill every time at twenty paces.'

When we entered the mansion, and were introduced to the Colonel's wife and only daughter, I soon saw, by unmistakeable signs, than the acquaintance was of long-standing. The soft tone in which 'Mr. Atherton,' was always spoken by the young lady, and the frequent mistake of using 'Louis' instead, together with the kind, motherly manner of Mrs. Morgan, soon proved to me that Rose was the secret attraction that had drawn my new acquaintance to Kentucky.

After dinner, as we still sat chatting in the dining-room, the Colonel related to his wife and daughter what had occurred. It was a blow to both, because both knew the customs of the State—but neither let fall a word to show she thought that any other course but one was possible. But I noticed that, after this, Rose manifested less timidity and reserve, and behaved toward Atherton as if every one knew, or might that she was his betrothed.

As for Atherton, he fully realized the danger of his situation. In fact, he evidently admitted to his himself that there was no reasonable chance of escape. Galbraith was a practiced duellist—and a sure shot. He was neither. Besides, as the Colonel had rather incautiously let out, even the death of Jim Galbraith might not release him from peril. One of the brothers, in such a case, probably would renew the challenge. There was no telling what such a pestiferous, daring and reckless blood would do. Other men who slept on their wrath might find it soften by morning. With the Galbraiths, time only seemed to intensify their hate. They chewed the bitter cud of what they deemed an insult until it seemed tenfold more bitter than at first and an insult to one became magnified into an insult at all.

As the thought of all this bore down heavily upon his heart—and he turned from it to the beautiful face of the young girl by his side—it doubtless seemed to him that life was never so sweet as in this moment when he might be standing on the brink of the grave.

As we sat thus quietly in the parlor, a servant ushered in one whom we recognized at once as the Jew peddler. In spite of the bruises of his face, and the meanness of his attire, there was something noble in the appearance of the peddler as with modest, but erect bearing he entered the room, and, with a low and sweeping obeisance to all, walked up to where Atherton was sitting.

'I come,' said he—as Atherton, gentleman as he was in every fibre, sprang up and held out his hand, which the Jew pressed lightly for a moment, 'to thank you, my young preserver and deliverer, for your generous deed. But far rather would I be lying dead at the door of the tavern, crushed into the clay by the scoffer's heel—may the curse of Abraham be upon him!—than that you should come to harm because you have been kind to me, a stranger. They say in the town that he means to kill you to-morrow—have you heard from him?'

'I have not,' replied Atherton, haughtily, while his pale cheek flushed—'and it may not be so easy to kill me as he thinks. Two can play at that game.'

'So spake David,' said the Jew approvingly, 'when he went out to fight with Goliah. Be not dismayed, my son, at his size or fierceness of his countenance. He shall not prevail against thee! I, Solomon the Jew—I, in whose veins flows the blood of Solomon the king—I say that he shall not prevail against thee. Thou shalt smote him as David smote Goliah!'

It was impossible to avoid being impressed by the Jew's earnestness. He seemed no longer a mere peddler—he looked and talked like a prince of the House of David.

Mrs. Morgan, especially, was greatly impressed. 'And are you of the linage of Solomon?' she excitedly asked.

'I am!' replied the Jew, loftily. 'I am Solomon Ben Judah, of the House of David. Look at this—for the hand of Solomon the Great has held it—and his kingly breast has felt its mystic touch.'

The Jew drew from some secret pocket a gem of considerable value—it was a large fire opal, set in some curious filagree work of gold. Attached to it was a purple ribbon. "This gem belongs to the head of our house. I am the head. But I am the last of our great line. Whoever wears this gem upon his bosom, shall never come to a violent death—neither at the hand of man, nor at the hand of God! I am the last of my line—take it, my friend, my champion; and the bullet of thy enemy, though he were the fiend incarnate himself, shall never take thy life.'

Atherton took the gem—and we all crowded around to look at and examine it.

'Look at it closely, all of you,' continued the Jew. 'There is something to be seen, and blessed is he who can see it.'

Atherton passed it around to each of us, and we peered intently into the mysterious stone—but while we all acknowledged it to be a splendid gem of its kind, we could see nothing peculiar in its crimson depths.

At last the opal came back to Atherton. "Let me look," said he playfully; and as he took the gem into his hand, I noticed that the eyes of the Jew watched him with a close and anxious eagerness. Suddenly Autherton's face grew serious. "I think I see it," said he slowly—"I am certain I see it. It is very curious though. It looks like a man's hand—perhaps an angel's hand, grasping and waving a flaming sword."

'Now, glory to the God of my fathers!' cried the Jew, and he flung up his hands toward heaven. 'He had heard the cry of the despairing, and stretched forth the might of Gabriel's arm to shield and save! Young man, in that sign thou shalt surely conquer! To few possessors of that stone is it given to see what thou hast seen. I never saw it. But whoso seeth it, he shall not only hold his life in safety, but no one shall be able to prevail in any degree against him. Honors and riches and length of days shall be his, and all men shall call him blessed! Dismiss then all fear of thy adversaries—not one shall prevail against thee. But thou shalt bow their faces in the dust—thou shalt conquer and triumph like David and like Solomon.'

"But it would not be right for me to keep such a valuable gem, my venerable friend,' saith Atherton, holding out the opal towards the Jew.

'I should not dare to take it back now even if I wished to,' replied the Jew. 'Jehovah has spoken. Rejoice in thy good fortune—and never forget the poor and the oppressed. I depart now in peace. For I know thou art safe behind the outstretched sword of Gabriel!' and making again his low and sweeping obeisence, Solomon Ben Judah left the room.

'Well,' said the Colonel, 'that beats all; I confess I am impressed—and as for mother, she looks as if she really thought all things would go right now, and that the whole difficulty was settled.'

'I do think so,' replied Mrs Morgan, with fervor.

'And I also think so,' said Rose. 'I know that Louis will, in some way, go through this danger unharmed.'

The Colonel looked a little amused, and as if it were at the end of his tongue to say, 'just like a woman,' but for self-evident reasons, he held his peace. Anything was to be welcomed that would comfort and support the female portion of his family in such a trying hour.

'Let me try again if I can see anything in that opal,' said Mrs. Morgan. She gazed intently, but owned, with a sigh, she could not see the mystic sign. And then the stone was passed around among us, but not one could see it.

'Pshaw, I guess it was all your imagination, Louis,' exclaimed the Colonel, after a long look, and after shifting the opal so that the light fell upon it from all possible angles. 'It is full of magnificent lustres—but all is wavy, nothing is distinct.'

'You will please remember, Colonel, that the Jew had not dropped a word as to what he wished me to see until I described it. And I see it now in my mind clearly—a milk-white hand, grasping the hilt of a crimson sword—or rather a scimitar, for it was curved in the Asiatic fashion, like the famous blades of Damascus. But, it is curious, I cannot see it now,' continued Atherton, rather abashed.

'Perhaps it is not meant that you should see it always. It might become too common a thing to you, and lose its mystic power over your spirit,' said Mrs. Morgan with a woman's ready faith.

'It is there—I caught a glance of it just now—I knew my eyes had not deceived me—I saw it as plainly as I see that picture on the wall,' cried Atherton in a glow of enthusiasm. Evidently his faith in the talisman was becoming almost equal to that of the ladies.

'Let me hang it around your neck—do not part with it for a moment,' said his betrothed; and with trembling hands and blushing face she did so.

At this moment some visitors was announced—a gentleman and a lady of the neighborhood, with their little girl. The father and mother did not strike me as peculiar in any way, but the little girl was certainly the most angelic little creature I ever saw. Such hair! such large, liquid eyes! I thought of the Saviour's words, 'of such is the kingdom of heaven!'

After sitting awhile in her mother's lap, the little Cecilia got down and began to stray around the room. At once all arms were extended toward her, and 'come to me,' 'no, come to me,' resounded on all sides. The shy little puss smiled, however, and would not reciprocate these advances, until she came opposite to where Atherton was sitting. Then, as he held out his arms like the rest, she softly glided into them, was lifted upon his knee, and laid her little shining head against the opal in his bosom.

'It is always so,' said Colonel Morgan, laughing. 'Children always prefer the gentlemen. I have noticed it fifty times.'

'The reason is very evident,' replied Mrs. Taliaferro, (they pronounced it Toliver, rather oddly, I thought); 'We women are with them all the time, and become associated in their minds with many unpleasant duties. The gentlemen come in, take them in their arms, show them their watches, and dance them up and down, and play with them. Of course, the idea of a coat and trowsers soon becomes associated in their little minds with all that is pleasant and agreeable.'

'Pretty well argued that,' replied the Colonel, with a smile; 'and probably it is not very far from the truth—though, of course, Mrs. Taliaferro, you would not expect any of us gentlemen to admit it. Our reason for the thing is, the superior magnetism and fascination of our sex.'

'Oh, yes, men are vain enough to believe anything of that kind, however absurd,' replied the lady.

By this time little Cecilia was on the floor again, and at a low table, on which some books were lying. Taking one of them in her waxen arms, she lugged it up to Atherton, and opening it, put her tiny finger on one of the pages, and said: ''Ead! 'ead!'

'Oh, Cecy, you must not trouble the gentleman—he has not time to read to you,' interposed her mother.

''Ead! 'ead!' cried the little creature however, in an imperative tone; and Louis, smiling, bent his eyes upon the passage where her fairy finger rested.

'Why, this is a scientific work, my little precious,' said he; 'you would not care to hear this.'

Then a sudden change came over his countenance—something in the book seemed to have arrested all his faculties, and enchained his utmost attention. He seemed to devour every word. The child either finding herself neglected, or from mere childish caprice, left his side and went back to her mother, but still Atherton read on.

Jennie's Thanksgiving Dinner.

'Mamma,' said Jennie Dean one day, late in October, 'I wish I could have a Thanksgiving all myself. I mean, that is, a dinner. I should like a roast chicken—a turkey would be too large for my table—and vegetables, and cranberry sauce; (I don't think Thanksgiving would be much without cranberry sauce), and have the things in my china dinner set on my little table. Then I should like to invite Ella Wells and Minnie Lane to come and eat it with me. Why can't I have it, mamma?'

'Why don't you think it would be a good deal of trouble Jennie for cook to get up two dinners on Thanksgiving day?'

'I know it,' said Jennie rather downcast; 'but I guess cook would do it for me.'

'Very likely she would if you asked her; but where should you get the chicken and the rest of the things you want? Have you got any money of your own to buy them with?'

Oh dear, mamma! Why does everything cost money? I never thought where the things were coming from. I wish I was big enough to earn money myself; then I could have ever so many dinners if I wanted them. Isn't there any way I can get a dollar or two? Try to think, mamma.'

Thus urged, and really desirous to please her little daughter. Mrs. Dean told her she might pick over the rags in the garret and sell them, and what she got for them she might spend on a Thanksgiving dinner.

Jennie was delighted. A Thanksgiving dinner she could not only call her own, but that she had earned the money to buy, was a pleasure indeed.

Every day she took a little turn at picking over the rags and tying up the papers. A number of times she got discouraged and thought she would give it up, but the imagined pleasure of sitting at her own table with a deliciously browned chicken before her, and her two friends Ella and Minnie, one on either side, kept up her spirits while she worked on.

At the beginning of Thanksgiving week she had her rags all ready; and then she began to watch for the junkman. Tuesday morning one came along. She stopped him and sold her wares for two dollars, there were so many. She capered about and could hardly wait for the next day, when she was going to buy a chicken herself, and invite the girls at the same time. Wednesday came however, and she set out for market with the two dollars pinned in the corner of her pocket handkerchief. On her way she had to pass through a street where half-starved and half-naked children sat or lay about on the sidewalk. Before the door of one of the wretchedest habitations sat a little girl a trifle younger than Jennie, crying bitterly. Jennie was a tender hearted child and could not bear to see any one in trouble; so she stopped and said, 'What's the matter little girl? What are you crying about?'

'Cause I can't have no Thanksgiving dinner. Everybody 'most's agoin' to have dinner; but my ma says she's too poor to buy nothin.' Oh dear! An' I'd like a piece of chick'n so. I never eat no chick'n in all my life. Oh dear!' and here she went off in a passion of grief again.

Jenny put her hand in her pocket, then stopped. There were the two dollars, her very own. If she had a mind to, she could give the money to those poor people who could buy no Thanksgiving dinner themselves. But then if she did so she would have to forego the pleasure of her own little feast, and of having Ella and Minnie with her. She thought it over and over; and kept fumbling the money in her pocket, when the words of the little girl about never having eaten any chicken popped into her head and decided her.

She started off at a brisk pace, and soon arrived at the market. To the man who asked her errand she said: 'Sir, I want you to give me the very best chicken you've got. I want it for a poor little girl who never tasted any. And I want some potatoes and cranberries. There's two dollars,' unpinning it from her handkerchief, "and I want you to give me the most you can for that.'

Then the really kind hearted man entered into the spirit of her plan, and gave her a fine, large fowl, and a quantity of the best potatoes and cranberries, and of his own accord threw in some luscious, rosy-apples to complete the repast.

Jennie was delighted with her purchase but found that she could not carry all of the things herself. The marketman seeing her perplexity, offered to send a boy with them, and Jennie marched off in triumph, the boy and the basket following.

You should have seen the joy her gift brought to the unfortunate family on whom she bestowed it. The poor starved children skipped about, and the mother an honest, hard-working Irish woman, cried out to Jennie 'May the good Lord bless an prasarve ye, Miss, an' make ye sich an angel in Heaven as yez be on the airth!'

Then Jennie trotted off home, and though she surrendered a great deal of pleasure to make others happy her heart was very light with the consciousness of a good deed.

Her mother was so busy preparing for company, that she forgot to ask her daughter about the success of her marketing till the next day, when she said, 'Jennie, isn't it time for you to begin to set your table? I think your little friends will be here soon.'

'I don't think they will, mamma, for I'm not going to have my little dinner;' answered Jennie, shyly looking down, and playing with her apron.

"Not have your dinner dear! Why not my child?'

'Because I can't very well mamma;' and then Jennie told her mother what she had done.

'My dear Jennie,' said her mother; 'you have done the best thing you could with your money, and have made me truly thankful in the knowledge that I have so good a child.'

And Jennie's father, who had been listening unobserved, added, as he caught her up and kissed her, "Every Thanksgiving, Jennie I'll give you the same amount either to spend for your own dinner, or to give away as you like. I am proud of you, my dear daughter, for your generous act. You have learned the first lesson of charity and Christianity—to do unto others as you would have others do to you—and that is the best evidence of the Thanksgiving of the heart.'

Treatment of the Cally Lily.

Few window plants are more easy of culture, none more beautiful than this stately gift of the old Nile. We have one of these lilies, or rather a clump of them, for there are five distinct plants. Last year we planted them in a 14-inch pot, and notwithstanding the best care, and the chief seat in our synagogue, not a blossom did they have until March 1st. In June we turned the pot on its side under a grape vine, and left it until the middle of September. The foliage was dead—the earth as hard as the bricks made without straw by the old Hebrews. We soaked the mass in a tub of tepid water, until we could wash the earth from the roots, breaking as few of them as possible. Then we crowded the roots into a 10-inch pot, filling up the interstices and to within three inches of the top with fine well rotted manure, then an inch of good soil, heaping it around the stems, packing it closely and sloping to the sides of the pot. We have watered daily with hot, almost boiling water. The earth in the centre prevents injury to the plant from heat, the soil and pot cool the water before reaching the roots. Now, Nov. 4th, our plant shows twenty fine leaves and a beautiful blossom is just unfolding. If an ordinary flower pot is used the hole in the bottom should be closed, this can be done from the inside with a cork and sealing wax or putty. It is best to water each morning, giving just sufficient to saturate the soil instead of a supply for some days—the daily application of heat being an important point. Pour on the hot water slowly just inside the edge of the flower pot, using a pitcher, or any other vessel with a spout. Stimulate by manure water, or aqua ammonia—one tablespoonful of the latter to a gallon of water. This may be applied about once in two weeks. To prevent the ravages of the red spider (a creature so small as to, escape but the closest scrutiny) the leaves should be washed frequently, the under as well as the upper surface. If not convenient to shower, this can be done with a sponge, or soft cloth. A. C. T.

LOVE AND REST.

"Love is sweeter than rest."—Henry Timrod.

"Rest will soon be granted, dear—
Think of all the bliss
When you reach the brighter sphere,
Lifted free of this!
Home, and rest, and palms, and peace!
Verily, such gain
O'er the losses of release,
Balances the pain!"

"Yea; but human love to me
Is so near divine,
That my heart clings yearningly
Even to life like mine.
Love is sweeter far than rest—
That alone I know—
And the soul that loves me best
Will not let me go."

"Home, and rest, and heaven dear—
Love is in them all!
Tenderest love is given dear,
In the Saviour's call;
He would lift your face to his,
Fold you to his breast,
Teach you what a crowning 'tis!
When he offers rest!"

"Rest is sweet—how well I know
Rest that follows care—
When the tired sun droppeth low,
And beside my chair
Listens one while I repeat
By her love caressed:
'Ah my little darling, love is sweet,
Sweeter even than rest!'"

"Yet, beloved, more than we Understand, he gives
Unto him who trustfully
In his promise lives;
Measures all the bliss we can,
Still must be believed
Never has the heart of man
Perfect joy conceived!"

"True, ah, true, and well I mark
All your words would teach—
And my soul beyond the dark
Stretches forth to reach
Faith yet fuller, more complete
While my lips attest
It is love makes heaven sweet;
Love is more than rest!"

Slicking up for Winter.

Farmers, in common with all householders generally are careful to slick up their premises in the spring, but are not so careful to do it in the fall. They seem to think the snow will soon come and cover up all defects and blemishes. True, the snow will probably come, but there are some things which ought to be attended to before the snow comes, and one of them is to clean up the leaves. These will pay all expenses of time and money as bedding and manure. Gathered when dry, and put under cover, they make the best of bedding for horses and cows, and are full of rich salt for the compost heap. Straw is so valuable in these latter days that farmers can hardly afford to use it as bedding for their stock, and the temptation is to sell it and let the stock lie on wet and hard boards. There is no excuse for this cruelty when leaves are piled in great winrows about the premises. When the time for the falling of leaves has passed and they have become crisp from the sun and wind, then is the time to gather them, and who ever does it will find his reward.

Another chore for this season of the year is to look after the drains of the cellar and the land, to see that the outlets are not choked up. There is a constant deposit at these outlets, and a few moments' work in clearing them out will save hours and days of vexatious toil, and in case of house drains, possibly weeks of wearisome disease, for there is nothing more pernicious to health than a damp, malarious cellar.

All the old boards and refuse lumber of all sorts about the premises should be carefully gathered before the snow falls, cut up and piled in the wood-house for the Winter's fuel. Some put it in the cellar; but no rotton wood should ever be placed in the cellar to contaminate the air of the whole house. The wood-house is plenty near enough to the sitting and sleeping apartments for the storage of the refuse.

The wood-house itself should be cleaned out every fall or spring, for the accumulations of rotton chips are by no means conducive to health. The compost heap is the place for chipdirt, and after the wood house is cleaned out the ground or floor should be strewed with air-slacked lime before the house is filled up again with wood

The cellar also needs attention after the roots are stored in it; it should be swept and the ceilings and sides whitewashed. It is a matter of regret that turnips, cabbages, etc., must be stored in the cellar, and no more should be placed there than are absolutely necessary for the wants of the family during the winter. The appropriate place for the balance is the barn cellar, or, if there is no barn cellar—the more is the pity—then they should be pitted. Over the potatoes and turnips, etc., which are deposited in the cellar of the house a little air-slaked lime may be scattered, which will prevent all decay and all effluvia.

The farm buildings generally should be refitted for winter, the farm implements put in the tool-house and broken parts repaired.

There is comfort and profit in slicking up.

RENEWER.

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation, which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring Gray or Faded Hair to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical Hair-Dressing ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. THANKSGIVING.

This old New England holiday has at length come to be a National institution, although we do not think it is observed in this State with that zest the people of New England give to it. Yet if ever any people had occasion for gratitude to the Giver of bounteous harvests and prosperous days, the present is surely the occasion, and the farmers of Pennsylvania are surely that people. The season has been a prosperous and fruitful one, generally favorable for most kinds of crops grown in this State, with a single exception in regard to Indian corn. The spring was backward, wet and cold, and throughout the growing season there was very little corn growing weather—the real warm days and nights which so push this crop ahead in July and August. The cool, wet spring was, however, favorable for grass, and while the pastures were in good condition all the year, the crop of hay secured was a large one. The yield of grain of all kin s has been good, and wheat, which is one of the most important crops of the farmers of Centre county, is said to be equal to the best yields of some of the celebrated wheat growing sections of the West, which is good testimony of the capacity of our soil, under proper conditions and with good management, to bear satisfactory crops of of this royal cerial—that from which comes the "staff of life." In addition to these leading crops the yield of which has been so large, the minor crops have also been equally as successful. These are becoming of considerable importance, and afford throughout the season no inconsiderable share in the luxurious subsistence of the farmer's family. The products of the fruit and vegetable garden and the miscellaneous crops of the farm and field have been abundant; and beans, peas, squashes, pumpkins, and the whole line of vegetables have been secured in large measure. In fact no crop may be said to be a failure in Pennsylvania this season. To add to this degree of independence occasioned by good crops, the yield of hay enables the farmer to keep a good stock. The oxen, cows, young stock, sheep, horses, fowl and pigs add to the farmer s wealth, and enlarge his means of comfort and independence. While they contribute to his monetary standing, the surplus also adds a large source of comfort and luxury to his daily fare. Who can set so good a table of wholesome food as the farmer who has, as our Pennsylvania farmers have, raised bounteous crops; and who has a beef creature to kill, shoats to slaughter, fat wethers and fowl to turn into the commissary department, and butter cheese, eggs, lard, pickles and preserves, ad libitum?

But these are not the only means of comfort, or the only sources of happiness and cause for thanksgiving with which our farmers are surrounded. There are warm and comfortable houses all over our goodly State; cheerful firesides, domestic comforts, intelligence, refinement, good society, churches, schools, books and newspapers. These are all agencies toward a more rational enjoyment and a higher happiness than comes from mere material good, and in no section of our common country, are the home virtues more grandly developed, the social amenities of life more to be enjoyed, the honor and happiness of citizenship more sacred and prized than among the farmers of the Key Stone State. Everywhere among the rural population there is not only a degree of intelligence and happiness, but a measure of prosperity and independence which must certainly form a sourse of comfort and enjoyment, and are a cause for gratitude and thanksgiving at the approach of winter. Yet it is a sad thought that even in this land of abundant crops, there are many cases of want and suffering among the non-productive classes, especially in our towns and cities. While the farmers, as a class, are well prepared to meet a cold winter, there are large numbers who have been thrown from employment, and who must suffer, but for the kindly sympathy and generous charity of those who have an abundance. See if you may not be able, of your bounty, to add some comfort and good cheer to those who, from adverse circumstances, may be in want, or suffering or distress. In so doing you will surely find a large blessing rolling in upon your own hearts.

While these thoughts were not inappropriate to the festivities of the past week, they are also suitable to the present week and season of the year, and the number of our paper for which we write. As the time honored thanksgiving season again comes ruond, what but thoughts of our blessings and comforts should fill the mind and cause the heart to ascend in gratitude to the Giver of all good? And at the approach of cold winter, what is more calculated to bring good cheer and satisfaction, than the thought of the abundant harvest of the year, and the prosperity and contentment which prevail all around?

So as we take leave of Vol. 6 of the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN, whose closing pages we shall fill up during the present month, we bespeak for all who have followed us through the year, hearts warm with love and joyous with thanksgiving, that they may unite with us in expressions of gratitude, and praise, and thanks, to Him who crowneth the year with His goodness, who openeth His hand and satisfieth the desire of every living thing.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.—A few days ago, says a correspondent, an attempt was made to shoot the wife of Mr. David Zellers, at their home a few miles above town, on the Buffalo Run road. It appears that a strange looking man who wore a mask and was otherwise disguised, came to Mr. Zellers' house about dusk in the evening. There was no one at home but Mrs. Zellers who was engaged at some work in the cellar. Hearing the intruder, she come to the cellar door where she was terribly frightened at recognizing, despite his disguise, a laborer who had worked for them on the farm during the fall. He demanded that a certain amount of money should be paid him or he would shoot her. She told him that he would have to wait until her husband returned and he would settle with him. When he found that he was recognized, through his disguise, he became furious and threatened instantly to blow her "brains out" if the money was not paid immediately. Mrs. Zellers became alarmed and retreated into the cellar and the cowardly villian drew a revolver and fired two shots at her and then fled to the mountain. Fortunately Mrs. Zellers was not hurt but was afraid to leave the cellar till her husband came. A warrant was procured for the arrest of the cowardly assassin, but as yet we have not heard of his being taken.

——Our Philadelphia correspondent asserts that McClure has bought a controling interest in Forney's Press. From information which we have, we know our correspondent is mistaken, although there may have been some negotiations looking to that result. The last rumor is, that McClure and his friends are to start a new paper in Philadelphia with a capital of $100,000. Let all sides be heard we say.

——John H. Vosburg, Esq., the court reporter, sometimes invokes the muses, as witness his little book entitled "Ralph Elmwood." There is something fascinating about the story, both in the plot and denouement as well as in the chaste and delightful language in which it is told. A few copies of the book have been left at the bookstores in town for sale.

——We are sorry to hear that Mr. P. Gray Meek, of the Watchman, is again confined to a dark room at his house with a return of disease of the eyes.

——Mr. W. H. Bierly, late editor of the Williamsport Register, was among the attendants at Court on Wednesday last.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

—We have on our table a copy of the Weekly Witness, a large eight page paper, which in less than three years has attained the large circulation of 60,000 copies, no better recommendation of its worth is needed. In religion the Witness will take the same ground with the Evangelical Alliance and Tract Society; in Temperance with the National Temperance Society; in human rights, irrespective of color, with the American Missionary Society; public questions will be regarded only from a Christian standpoint. Published by John Dougall, No. 2 Spruce St., New York. See advertisement of daily in another column.

LOCKE'S NATIONAL MONTHLY, for December, appears in good time, and is replete with matter appropriate for the holiday season. The number opens with a capital Thanksgiving story, by Jeanie Morison, followed by a pleasing and well written Christmas story from the pen of Louis Howard. Mrs. Rosa L. Segur, under the title of "The South Sea Empire," has an interesting paper on the annexation of Fiji to Great Britain M.H. Williams, in the fourth of his very interesting papers on the "Problem of Co-operation," treats of "Co-operative Clubs;" M. S. Stewart has a humorous sketch, entitled "The State vs. Brown;" and Eben E. Rexford, a critical paper on "Byron and Tennyson," while the department of poetry is well represented by Will. H. Thompson and M. M. Other articles indicate the excellent character of the eclectric portion of the magazine, and the entire number does credit to the publishers. Terms, $1.00 per year. 'A DROP OF JOY IN EVERY WORD.'

FLEMINGTON, Huntingdon Co., N. J., June 26, '74.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir.—It is with a happy heart that I pen these lines to acknowledge that you and your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets are blessings to the World. These medicines cannot be too highly praised, for they have almost brought me out of the grave. Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your Golden Medical Discovery and Purgative Pellets, and have taken six bottles, and to-day I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write. God's blessing rest on you and your wonderful medicines is the humble prayer of

Yours truly,
JAMES O. BELLIS.

When a medicine will promptly cure such terrible eating ulcers and free the blood of the virulent poison causing them, who can longer doubt its wonderful virtues? Dr. Pierce, however, does not wish to place his Golden Medical Discovery in the catalogue of quack patent nostrums by recommending it to cure every disease, nor does he so recommend it; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of blood disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for this disease, yet he knows it to be the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will free the blood and system of all other known blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral. The Golden Discovery is warranted by him to cure the worst forms of Skin Diseases as all forms of Blotches, Pimples and Eruptions, also all Grandular Swellings, and the worst form Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of Neck, Legs or other parts, and Scrofulous Diseases of the Bones, as White Swelling, Fever Sores, Hip Joint and Spinal Diseases, all of which belong to Scrofulous diseases.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

IT is useless to attempt to cleanse a stream while the fountain is impure. Dispepsia, complaints of the liver or kidneys, eruptions of the the skin, scrofula, headache and all other diseases arising from impure blood, are at once removed by Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters, purifier of the blood, and renovator of the system. It has never been known to fail. 46-4w

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.

Will be found to possess those qualities necessary to the total eradication of all billious attacks, prompt to start the secretion of the liver, and give a healthy tone to the entire system. Indeed, it is no ordinary discovery in medical science to have invented a remedy for those stubborn complaints, which develop all the results produced by a heretofore free use of calomel, a mineral justly dreaded by mankind, and acknowledged to be destructive in the extreme to the human system. That the properties of certain vegetables comprise all the virtues of calomel without its injurious tendencies, is now an admitted fact, rendered indisputable by scientific researches; and those who use the Mandrake Pills will be fully satisfied that the best medicines are those provided by nature in the common herbs and roots of the fields.

These pills open the bowels and correct all billious derangements without salvation or any of the injurious effects of calomel or other poisons. The secretion of bile is promoted by these pills, as will be seen by the altered color of the stools, and disappearing of the sallow complexion and cleansing of the tongue.

Ample directions for use accompany each box of pills.

Prepared only by J. H. Schenck & Son, at their principal office, corner Sixth and Arch sts., Philadelphia, and are sold by all druggists and dealers. Price 25 cents per box. 47-4t

THE question has often been asked by those interested, "Can I have my grey hair restored to its natural color, without coloring the skin? and can my thin locks be thickened up?" We answer, 'It can;" and would advise you to read a treatise on the hair, which is published by R P. Hall & Co., Nashua, N. H., who send it free upon application. They are the proprietors of Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer. We learn from it, the hair in a perfect state of health is constantly falling out, and new hairs grow from the same tube; but, in case of any disease of the scalp, or by the use of alcoholic preparations, the hair-tube becomes contracted at its mouth, and prevents the new follicle from reaching the surface. Their preparation will create a perfectly healthy condition of the scalp, and, by its tonic properties, will preserve and strengthen the roots of the hair. Statesman, De Moines, Iowa.

CRAMPS and pains in the stomach are the result of imperfect digestion, and may be immediately relieved by a dose of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. A teaspoonful in a little sweetened water is a dose.

HEAVY oats are good for horses; none will deny that; but oats can't make a horse's coat look smooth and glossy when he is out of condition. Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders will do this when all else fails.

FINANCE AND TRADE.

GOLD 112⅞

All kinds of business is as flat as it possibly can be. Money is plenty in the cities and Eastern state banks, but every channel seems to be block aded, so that there is no inducement from business men to make any efforts to put the surplus into circulation. A meeting of the furnance owners of the Lehigh, Schuylkill and Susquehanna Valleys was held in Philadelphia last week for the purpose of considering the state of the iron trade, and devising measures for its relief. After three hours' discussion resolutions were adopted declaring that a continuance of the present rate of production would result in the ruin of the trade, and appointing a committee of seven to induce manufacturers to co-operate in reducing the quantity of iron produced. It was also resolved that the Chairman of the Committee on Big Iron in the American Iron and Steel Association be requested to call a meeting of all the pig iron makers in the country at the rooms of the Association on Thursday, Dec. 10, 1874, at 11 o'clock a. m. The following gentlemen were appointed the committee contemplated by the second resolution: Wm. Rainey, Allentown; C. S. Kauffman, Columbia; G. W. Whitiker, Hellertown; J. B. Moorhead, Philadelphia; G. D. Coleman, Lebanon; Horace Brooke, Baltimore, Md.; H. S Eckert, Reading.

General complaint was made at the meeting of the high price of anthracite coal, brought about by the gigantic combination between the leading coal transportation companies, effected by the Reading Railroad. It was asserted that coal and freights are higher now when iron is worth only $23 a ton than they were when it was worth $50, and further, that the coal which now costs the furnaces $3.50 could be had for $1.50 were it not for the artificial price maintained by the combination.

Among many interesting statements made in the course of the discussion was this: that the number of furnaces in the West has increased to such an extent that Eastern Pennsylvania must forever relinquish the iron trade of the region west of the Alleghenies. A curious circumstance was the absence of any remarks bearing even remotely upon the subject of the tariff, except a single sentence spoken incidentally by a delegate from Lehigh Valley, to the effect that it was not foreign competition, but too much home competition, that was ruining the trade. Wages in mills and factories, it was observed, were down to the lowest living rates, unskilled labor, being only $1 a day and skilled from $1.25 to $1.75. Anthracite coal was never so high in Pottsville, Pa., as it is now; retailing there at $4.50@4.75 per ton notwithstanding the town is underlaid with coal.

Grain and Flour Markets.

BELLEFONTE, Dec. 2, 1874.

Wheat comes to town in ample supply for the mills, and prices have declined five cents per bushel during the week, and the market is weak at our quotations, which looks to another decline before the expiration of the coming week. The price of other grain is also lower, which is coming in quite fast. We drop old corn from our quotations, which is now considered out of the market.

Philadelphia Market Report.

Monday, Nov. 30, 1874.

REMARKS—Trade has improved somewhat since our last issue, but we have very few changes to record in prices. Thursday was generally observed as a day of Thanksgiving. The demand for money has increased, but the supply is ample, and the rates of discount remain as last quoted. The aggregate business of the season is considerably below that of recent years, but not so bad as one would naturally suppose, considering the distrust naturally created by the panic. The recovery from the recent troubles has been quite as rapid as the nature of commerce and credit will admit.

WHEAT—The market is dull, and with increased offerings, prices are hardly maintained Sales of 18,000 bus Indiana and Ohio good and prime Red at $1.20@1.24; 2,400 bus Penna. do at $1.22@1.24; and 800 bus Western Amber at $1.25@1.28. Receipts for the week 62,600 bus.

RYE—Comes forward slowly, and sells at 97@$1. Receipts for the week, 400 bus.

CORN—Meets a fair demand, but Saturday's figures are hardly maintained. The receipts of old are small, but new is coming in quite freely Sales of 6,000 bus old Western Yellow, at 94c; 16,300 bus new Penna. and Western do at 80@88, according to dryness; 20,000 bus were shipped to Liverpool per "Kenilworth." Receipts for the week, 75,150 bus.

OATS—Are held with increased confidence, and the offerings are light. Sales of 20,000 bus Western White at 63@64c; 13,800 bus choice do do at 65c, 65½@67; and 10,500 bus Western light mixed at 62@64½. To-day 2,800 bus Western White sold at 65@67c. Receipts for the week, 41,600 bus.

SEEDS—Cloverseed meets a fair inquiry, but the offerings are small. Sales of 800 bus at 8¼@8⅝c for fair and prime Penna., and at 8¾@9c for Western. Timothy is nominal at $2.60@2.65. Flaxseed commands $2, and is wanted.

THE SUN.

WEEKLY AND DAILY FOR 1875.

The approach of the Presidential campaign gives unusual importance to the events and developments of 1875. We shall endeavor to describe them fully, faithfully and fearlessly.

THE WEEKLY SUN has now attained a circulation of seventy thousand copies. Its readers are found in every State and Territory, and its quality is well known to the public. We shall endeavor not only to keep it fully up to its old standard, but to improve and add to its variety and power.

THE WEEKLY SUN will continue to be a thorough newspaper. All the news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment, and always, we trust, treated in a clear, interesting and instructive manner.

It is our aim to make the WEEKLY SUN the best family newspaper in the world. It will be full of entertaining and appropriate reading of every sort, but will print nothing to offend the most scrupulous and delicate taste. It will always contain the most interesting stories and romances of the day, carefully selected and legibly printed.

The Agricultural Department is a prominent feature in the WEEKLY SUN, and its articles will always be found fresh and useful to the farmer.

The number of men independent in politics is increasing, and the WEEKLY SUN is their paper especially. It belongs to no party, and obeys no dictation, contending for principle, and for the election of the best men. It exposes the corruption that disgraces the country and threatens the overthrow of republican government. It has no fear of knaves, and seeks no favors from their supporters.

The markets of every kind and the fashions are regularly reported in its columns.

The price of the WEEKLY SUN is one dollar a sheet of eight pages, and fifty-six columns. As this barely pays the expenses of paper printing, we are not able to make any discount or premium to friends who may make special efforts to extend its circulation. Under the new law, which requires payment of postage in advance, one dollar a year, with twenty cents the cost of prepaid postage added, is the rate of subscription. It is not necessary to get up a club in order to have the WEEKLY SUN at this rate. Any one who sends one dollar and twenty cents will get the paper, post-paid, for a year.

We have no traveling agents.

THE WEEKLY SUN.—Eight pages, fifty-six columns. Only $1.20 a year, postage prepaid. No discount from this rate.

THE DAILY SUN.—A large four page newspaper of twenty-eight columns. Daily circulation over 120,000. All the news for 2 cents. Subscription, postage prepaid 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year. To clubs of 10 or over, a discount of 20 per cent. Address, "THE SUN," New York 46-3t

How to Estimate the Profits of a Farm.

The farmer lives in his own house.—The use of the house, which he does not pay for, is as much a part of his income as the money that a salaried man pays for rent is of his, and should be counted as such in an estimate of the profit of the farm. All things produced on the farm and consumed on the farmer's table, including the vegetables from the garden, the eggs and milk used in cooking, are as much a part of his income as the money paid for such things out of his salary is of the salaried man. If a farmer gives his wife and children a pleasant ride to town, using his own horses and wagon, the value of their use is part of his income from his farm, as truly as the money the other man pays out of his salary for carriage hire is of his. The correct rule for estimating the income of a farm is substantially this:

Give credit for every article produced, used or expended in any way whatever, no matter how small in valne, as well as for each received for products sold, and for increase in the value of farm property, and charge against the farm for interest on capital invested, and for all expenditures. The farmer who will do this from year to year will not feel so much like complaining of the unprofitableness of farming as compared with other pursuits. The fact is that not one in a hundred farmers take into consideration the luxury, comforts of fresh eggs, butter, milk, etc., that they would have to pay high prices for if they lived in towns or do without them.

Lawn Trees and Shrubbery.

Whether you shall plant groups of trees on your lawn will depend upon the size of your grounds. If your space will permit, set several irregular clusters of trees so that they will mingle their sprays together and form dense masses of shade. If you plant one group of the same sort of trees, make another of different kinds, but those which harmonize agreeably, and another in which the colers of the foliage in autumn are vividly contrasted. Groups of round-headed trees are sometimes rendered more picturesque and striking by setting among them an occasional decurrent tree, like larch, or Norway spruce, or Lombardy poplar. Apart from the groups set a few choice specimen trees singly. And do not in all cases—certainly not in the case of evergreens—cut away the lower branches. Here and there let at least one tree grow from root to crown just as nature designed it to grow, and see what a miracle of symmetry and grace and strength it will become.

No place is complete without its collection of shrubs; and, indeed, with valnable additions made to the lists during the past ten years, they are now almost as important to the rural improver as trees themselves. They may be used as fringes to groups of trees, running out in flowing lines into the lawn; they may be trained as miniature trees, or kept in low dense banks of foliage, or cut into any shape which the fancy may dictate. They answer an excellent purpose also as screens to hide one's rear premises from the ornamental portions, and, when coupled with vines, to link the house to the grounds about it. In city and village lots they may be arranged on the same artistic principles as trees in a more ample domain, and the effect will be to give such grounds an appearance of larger extent.

Good, sweet wheaten bran is in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred better than physic, if it is given in time. Let any animal eating stinking, mouldy corn-stalks or brittle hay, making it look bad, have some bran to help its poor stomach, and it will soon appear in better plight. When a cow in milk does not do as well as she should on other food, add some bran. No matter what ails the horse, cow, sheep or pig, a little bran will do good—but don't feed the bran alone long.

THE Lycoming county Teachers' Institute will be held in Muncy, commencing Dec. 21st.

EXPLANATION AND ELABORATION

OF WANAMAKER & BROWN'S NEW PLAN.

1st POINT. "CASH."

Houses doing a credit business must provide for losses on bad debts, interest on long-standing accounts, capital locked up, etc. To bear such losses themselves would drive them out of business. Therefore a per cent. is added to the price of each article sold, to cover this leakage, and Cash Buyers whether they know it or not, really pay the bad debts and the interest on the long credits of the other customers!! Under the Cash Payment system one pays only for what he gets, and contributes nothing to a "Sinking Fund."

By this Radical Change we shall lose some of our customers no doubt, but we will gain ten where we lose one, the advantages being so great to all who can avail themselves of them. So we say

CASH THROUGHOUT.

Bring Money for Clothing, and we will supply it at prices possible under no other plan.

2d POINT. "ONE PRICE."

The fairness of this feature of our plan all will praise. It is simply treating all alike—exacting nothing from indisposition to bargain or ignorance, and, at the same time, conceding all that shrewdness on the shrewdest customer's part could possibly extort, because the "One Price" which we mark on our goods, shall invariably be

NOT the "First" Price, but the LAST and LOWEST PRICE.
NOT the "TOP" Price, but the VERY BOTTOM PRICE.

In other words, Salesmen or "Headmen," have never been allowed, under ordinary circumstances, to fall below a certain figure! It is at that, or at a lower figure that we now determine to mark our goods, calculating the cost to the exact penny, and fixing the price at the low minimum profit on which business on a large scale can be conducted.

We know that the larger business we aim for and anticipate, will require a large increase in the number of customers, and we shall therefore see to it that the "One Price" is based on the Smallest Profit, calculated to the exact and lowest penny, which will not be difficult to do with universal Cash Payment for the rule. The price will be marked in plain figures and no alteration allowed.

NOTE.—Whenever the exigencies of the season, the state of trade, or the money market may demand, the right is reserved to go through our stock before or after business hours and mark down any lot or lots of goods, changing the figures on all the labels, so that the new rates are the same to all, and all buy alike at the mark down prices.

WANAMAKER & BROWN WILL NEVER HOLD THEIR GOODS.

3d POINT. "Full Guarantee."

A printed Guarantee, bearing the signature of our firm, will accompany each garment as a Warrantee. This binds us in every sense, and will be honored as quickly as a good draft of the Government of the United States. This is a sample of the Full Guarantee, and tells its own story:

GUARANTEE.

We hereby guarantee

1st. That the prices of our goods shall be as low as the same quality of material and manufacture are sold anywhere in the United States.
2d. That the prices are precisely the same to everybody for same quality, on same day of purchase.
3d. That the quality of goods is as represented on printed labels.
4th. That the full amount of cash paid will be refunded, if customers find the articles unsatisfactory, and return them worn and uninjured within 10 days of date of purchase.

[Signed,] WANAMAKER & BROWN,
OAK HALL,
Sixth and Market Streets, Phila.

DATE.....

4th POINT. "Cash Returned."

This is simply a concession on our part to our customers, to secure them full confidence in dealing for goods they know very little about, and we thus prevent any occasion for dissatisfaction from any and every cause whatsoever. If the garment is not exactly what you thought, if your taste changes, if the "home folks" prefer another color or another shade, if you find you can buy the same material and style elsewhere for less money, if you conclude you don't need it after you get home, if the season changes suddenly and you wish you had not bought it, bring it back unworn and uninjured, and the full amount of money you paid will be refunded at the door. What more can we do for our customers than this, when we make our dealing so that they can draw the money value with it equally as well as with a check on the bank?

THE ADVANTAGES

incident to a system having for its cardinal points these which we have now explained, are simply innumerable. Saving of time and temper, perfect security, absence of all huckstering, &c., &c., &c., &c. But above all this

Sinking the prices several degrees below what they have been heretofore, or could possibly be under the old system.

By dispensing with certain clerks no longer needed, it reduces "Store Expenses."
By enforcing CASH Payments, the bad debts are avoided.
By putting plenty of ready money in hand, it enables us to buy goods at figures that credit men know nothing about.
By increase of sales, a smaller profit on each article is sufficient.

All of these "By-Ways" lead direct to and this without lowering the quality or style of our Celebrated make of Men's and Boys' Clothing.

Our warehouses, comprising 27 spacious rooms, are stocked to the full our home mills have been turning out large quantities of goods to us that are now in store, and Foreign fabrics by the ship load, are now on our counters. Our workmen have been a small army, and as diligent and skillful as they are numerous. With the improvements already noted, there are also new styles, new colors, new cuts and more careful finishing. Everything possible has been done to meet and gratify the rush, and now

MEDICAL.

CHEROKEE REMEDY.

THE GREAT INDIAN DIURETIC.
INFINITELY SUPERIOR TO BUCHU.

Nine tenths of the human family suffer, directly or indirectly, at one time or other, from diseases or irregularities of the generative system, while the victims of indiscretion, and of quack treatment, are comparatively numerous.

The idea that patients cannot treat themselves successfully in these cases, has long ago been exploded. A good and reliable medicine, prepared by an experienced physician, from the original Indian Recipe, that is guaranteed to effect a can be as safely relied upon as the prescription of the most skillful practitioner. Such a medicine is the celebrated

CHEROKEE REMEDY.

Full directions accompany each bottle, and if they are carefully followed, a quick and permanent cure is guarranteed. Price $2.00 per bottle.

THE CHEROKEE INJECTION,

should always be used in conjunction with the Remedy for both incipient and obstinate cases of Gonorrhœa. Price $2.00 per bottle.

CHEROKEE CURE

for seminal weakness (spermatorrhœa), is a simple vegetable medicine that was used for many years in the practice of the physician who first gave the remedy to the public. It has effected cures that would scarcely be credited except on ocular evidence of the fact. Full directions, with pamphlet containing all particulars of symptoms, treatment, &c., accompany each bottle. Price $2.00 per bottle. Sold everywhere.

CHEROKEE PILLS.

These Pill are prepared expressly for the cure of those irregularities to which ladies are subject, and will be found safe, reliable and effectual, for the cure of Suppression, Green Sickness, Pain in the Back, Hysteria, Sick Headache, &c., &c. Price $1.00 per box.

Heimstreet's Hair Restorative,

OR INIMITABLE HAIR COLORING.

NOT A DYE.—Heimstreet's "Hair Coloring is not a Dye, and its operation is not by any chemical effect, but by a natural restoration of the glands, thus giving the hair the color it originally had.

NATURALNESS.—When the hair is dyed, its color is leaden hued and unnatural, but when restored by HEIMSTREET'S HAIR COLORING, its appearance is so perfectly natural that no one can detect the use of any Restorative.

STAINLESS.—While the Restorative acts promptly on the hair, it leaves no stain or mark whatever on the skin. It is composed of ingredients that form a perfect dressing as well as a coloring, so that no oils, &c., are necessary.

THIS MOST EFFECTIVE of all the Hair Restorers is for sale by all druggists at 50 cents and $1 00 per bottle. Numerous certificates from those who have used it are in the possession of the proprietors.

PARK'S BALSAM

OR

WILD CHERRY AND TAR.

BALSAM.—Nothing is more soothing to the irritated membranes than the pure BALSAMS of which this medicine is composed.

WILD CHERRY.—The true bark of Wild Cherry is an unfailing specific for all throat and pectorial diseases.

TAR.—The wonderful healing properties of Tar when united with the other ingredients, render PARK'S BALSAM the most efficient Cough Medicine ever offered to the public.

CONSUMPTION.—The many cases of Consumption that have been cured justify us in the assertion that it is the very best medicine for that disease ever discovered.

CERTIFICATES OF CURES.

STEPHEN FISK, of New York, says his daughter had consumption, and terbucles had formed in her lungs. He was induced to try Park's Balsam, which effected a speedy cure.

T. EDWARD FLEET, of Brooklyn says, I think it is the best medicine for affections of the lungs I ever used.

G. S. FANCHER, of New York says, I feel fully persuaded that Park's Balsam has saved my life.

We have in our possession hundreds of certificates from others, and all of the same cheering import. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere.

EGYPTIAN
Rat and Vermin Destroyer

FOR EXTERMINATING RATS, MICE, WATER BUGS, ROUCHES, RED ANTS, &c.

STRENGTH.—When a Rat tastes the Egyptian Destroyer, his death warrant is signed, sure. It cannot fail to kill. It also creates great thirst, and the rat will search for water out of doors, and not die in his hole, to cause a stench that cannot be got out.

ATTRACTIVENESS.—Rats are the shrewdest of vermin. It is hard to get them to eat poison. An ingredient in the Egyption Destroyer is a perfect bait, and they are attracted rather than freightened be it. "Rats (not children) cry for it.

KEEPING SOFT.—People know how the ordinary Rat Pastes dry up and become useless, causing annoyance and loss. The Egyptian Destroyer is fully warranted to keep soft, fresh and effective in any climate for years.

SURE DEATH.—The Egyptian Destroyer kills every time. Hundreds of unsolicited testimonials are now in the hands of the proprietors, substantiating its great merits as the best preparation for destroying Vermin in the world. Be sure and ask for the "Egyptian," and take no other.

Put up in large glass bottles. Price, 25 cts. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

MEDICAL.

Wright's Rejuvenating Elixer.

For the restoration of Nature's forces. It gives new life and vigor to the aged, and causes the blood of youth to course through the veins. It effectually cures Impotency, Palpitation of the Heart, Loss of Muscular Power, Low Spirits, Disorganization of the Generative Organs, and all the train of ills that follow in the path of the transgressor of Nature's laws. Price $2 per bottle.

It will be readily understood that in the brief space afforded by the advertising columns of a public print, it is impossible to give all particulars of the diseases that may be cured by the CHEROKEE MEDICINES. That they are destined to become immensely popular is plainly obvious in consequence of their

GREAT INTRINSIC MERIT.

The pamphlet and circulars that accompany the medicines give all the information which cannot be given here, and the remedies may be had of any respectable druggist.

AT PRIVATE SALE.

A valuable farm containing 215 acres, situate within one mile of Milesburg, and three miles of Bellefonte, at the junction of the Bald Eagle Valley and Snow Shoe railroads, near the depot, Schools, Churches, Post office, Mills, etc. The lands are FREE from STONE, level, well fenced, and under a good state of cultivation. A valuable vein of

LIME STONE ROCK

is on the farm, and a village is growing up around it, which gives a fair prospect of an increase in value before long. The Philipsburg turnpike runs through it for a distance of ¼ of a mile rendering a large strip on each side available for house lots, from which the entire price of the farm might be realized, lots having sold heretofore for $100 apiece. The farm is well watered, having water in all the fields, good wells at the house and barn with pumps all in good order. There also are 50 acres of good

PINE AND OAK TIMBER.

The land has a southern exposure and is therefore very early. There are two houses on the farm, both facing the turnpike. One containing five rooms on the first floor with Hall and five on the second and back Kitchen, with room over-head. Connected with this house is a good log barn, ice house and other out buildings. On the other side of the road is the other house containing eight rooms with good barn and out buildings. This farm could be divided into two parts, and will be if purchasers so desire, making one containing 130 acres with the large house, and the other containing 36 acres with the small house. Terms easy. Inquire of James L. Sommerville, or R. T. Downing, or at the office of the Bellefonte REPUBLICAN.

ELAINE

AS AN ILLUMINATOR.

WHY IT IS THE SAFEST.

ELAINE will not explode while burning in a lamp, nor in any other way, as it does not contain any of the explosive compounds so frequently met with in the ordinary oil for illuminating. A lamp, filled with ELAINE, if upset or accidently broken, will not explode or burn. There is no position in which you can put a lamp filled with ELAINE, for common use, in which it will explode. As no other illuminator has such advantages of safety, ELAINE IS CERTAINLY THE SAFEST FAMILY ILLUMINATING OIL KNOWN.

——We have sent out some bills this week dated Jan. 1. 1875. Our subscribers will understand this when we inform them that as our subscsiption list is very large we are compelled to begin a few weeks in advance in order to get through at the end of the year. All bills are made out for arreages (if there are any) and one year in advance. We think every subscriber will see the justice of this, taking into consideration the fact that the labor and material used in furnishing the REPUBLICAN has to be paid for long before the year expires and although it seems like a very small matter to each individual subscriber he must remember it is thousands of dollars to us. We have no fault to find with the great majority of our patrons but there are some names on our books we hope to place a credit to before Jan. 1, 1875.

——Gold Fish, just received and for sale at Green's drug store.

—— Have a cigar? Step into Green's drug store and get the best in town.

——Examine Green's stock before purchasing your holiday presents.

——You can get Hoyt's German Cologne at Green's drug store.

——"'Tis sweet to be remembered" with a present from Green's drug store.

——The Watchman says the Commercial has "trodded" on the toes of its own party. Trodded is good.

——A Pittsburg man, worth $80,000, hung himself recently. If they must do it, that's the kind of men to go about it, as it loosens up the currency.

——Messrs George B. Weaver, Isaac Haupt and Simeon Haupt returned from the woods on Saturday last after a two week's hunt, having killed in all sixteen deer.

——During the absence, at New Orleans, of Mr. F. P. Green, the druggist, his establishment is in charge of Mr. Joseph McMinn, a genial and accomplished pharmacist.

——Cicero said, "The pursuit of all things should be calm and tranquil," but we don't think the maxim is a good one. We tried it this week in the pursuit of locals and the result shows that it don't work well.

——The candidates for the County Superintendency are looming up, although the time of election is not till next May. Messrs. Henry Meyer, and W. C. Heinleman, are leading aspirants, while Prof. Magee, the present energetic incumbent, is, in advance of Cæsarism, after a fourth term.

——We hope our subscribers outside of Centre Co., will attend to the little bills due to us for subscription, as after the first day of January, 1875, all papers not paid for in advance will be stopped, and we shall expect a prompt settlement of all bills. Money can be sent at our risk in registered letters, or by Post office money order.

——Col. A. K. McClure, with the assistance of outside parties, has purchased a controling influence in the Philadelphia Press, for $250,000, and will become its editor-in chief on the first of January next. The report that Governor Curtin had bought an interest with McClure, is, we are reliably informed, without any foundation whatever.

——The great quantity of new goods in way of hosiery, gloves, underwear, for ladies, gents and children; blankets, shawls, fancy goods, trimmings, etc., constantly receiving at H. Herman & Co's N. Y. Branch, makes times at our end of town look exceedingly brisk and the prices certainly tend to make hard times easy. Now is the chance! H. Herman & Co. are directly opposite the Bush House.

ANOTHER SELF-SHOOTING CASE.—On Monday morning as Joseph Schmittle was about starting out on a deer hunt, he had occasion to discharge the load from his gun, and in doing so, the barrel bursted, and terribly lacerated one of his hands. No cause is assigned for the bursting of the gun. Dr. Kline was sent for and dressed the wound, and he entertains hopes that Joe will not lose the entire use of his hand.—Osceola Bee-file.

——Bank robberies are becoming numerous in this part of the state and we advise all bankers to be on the alert. An attempt was lately made at Lewistown, the particulars of which are given as follows by the Sentinal:

"Last Friday the Mifflin County National Bank received a telegram purporting to come from Wm. Willis, dated Middleburg, calling upon its cashier to send him $500 dollars by express at once to Selinsgrove. Mr. Robeson, being aware that Colonel W. was in that county, sent the money as directed. On the arrival of the package at Selinsgrove a man appeared and claimed it as his. The gent refused to deliever it until he could identify the stranger as Mr. Willis. The man then had the temerity to name a prominent citizen of the place, hoping that this would satisfy the agent. It was 'no go' fortunately, and the confidence operator concluded to decamp. The same night a fine horse was missing, and the inference is that the would be money-thief changed his tactics and turned horse-thief. Mr. Willis did not learn of the free use of his name until his return to Lewistown, when Mr. Robeson incidentally remarked, 'Why, Willis, you must have been investing at Middleburg.' This observation led to explanations and mutual surprises. The money was ordered back to Lewistown, to the satisfaction of all parties but the thief."

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN.—One of the oldest citizens of the county died in Harris Township, last week, at the advanced age of 98 years. Henry Allen, the deceased, was the father-in-law of Mr. William Thompson of Houserville, Centre Co., Pa. He was a man of remarkable mental and physical vigor in earlier days and retained more strength of mind and body when his age ranged among the nineties, than most men do at sixty. He attributed his longevity to a life free from dissipations and excesses; wholly employed in active, useful pursuits, without any of the deleterious vices that are sure to hasten dissolution. He was a singularly pure and upright man, having been connected with a christian church from early life, a period of seventy years or over. He was a Massachusetts man and is said to have organized the first Sunday school at Martha's Vinyard, and as long as he stayed in that state was a member of the Orthodox church, or as they are sometimes called, the Trinitarian Congregationalists. On coming to Pennsylvania, as there were no societies of the Orthodox persuasion, he connected himself with the Episcopal Church, and has been for fifty years or more a consistent, earnest and upright member.

——The Clinton Democrat has the following to say about one of our citizens:

J. Irvin Gregg, a veteran of the Mexican war and a gallant cavalry General in the rebellion, now a Colonel in the regular army, commanding the department of New Mexico and Nevada, with his headquarters at Santa Fe, is visiting his relations and friends in Clinton and Centre counties. His mother resides in Millesburg, Centre county, and the General is married to a sister of Mr. Marshall Everhart of Lamar township. Gen. Gregg entered the Mexican war as a private in the volunteer service and returned at the conclusion of peace a First Lieutenant. In the rebellion he served in the 5th Pennsylvania Reserves, was made Colonel of the 16th Cavalry, and afterwards a Brigadier General and commanded second brigade of cavalry corps, second division. After General Lee's surrender, when the volunteer service was disbanded, General Gregg was made a Colonel in the United States Army, and has since been in active service on the border. His many friends in this section will be pleased to know that his leave of absence does not expire until next spring.

——A few years ago, Mary Markle, a daughter of Henry Markle of Patton township, this county, went to West Middlesex, Mercer Co., Pa., to live in the family of Mr. Saterfield. Two years ago last March. Mary left her Mercer Co. home for the purpose of visiting her mother who was then lying quite ill at Union township, this county. Since she left Mercer Co. she has not been heard of by any of her friends. The most vigorous and searching inquiries were made but nothing whatever could be found that would lead to a clearing up of the mystery attending her sudden disappearance. A subscriber, who knew of the circumstances, happened to notice in an old number of the Pittsburgh Commercial—of about that date—an account of the death, at the Union Depot, of an unknown woman who answered the description of Mary Markle. It may be that she died among strangers at the latter place, and having nothing about her person by which she might be indentified, was laid in the grave by strange hands. These facts, however, meagre as they are, might lead to a clearing up of the mystery, which, of itself, would be a satisfaction to her relatives.

——If the Clearfield "Republican" would change its name, it would oblige the Republican party. Not even Judas esposed the name of Him whom he betrayed.

——Religious services were held in all the churches in town on Thanksgiving day.

——The largest stock of Canary Birds ever brought to town at Green's drug store.

——Why is amiability like horse's tails? Because one endears and the other end(h)orses.—Rev. Joseph Nesbitt.

——Please take notice of the change of time of the different trains on the B. E. Valley road. Schedule will be found on the fifth page.

——We don't like to present exciting subjects after the election, but District Attorney Potter is kept exceedingly busy in court this week.

——We notice by a West Virginia paper that George W. Patton, who used to be a jeweller in town, has been elected Deputy Grand Commander of the Grand Commandary of West Va. There are not a great many Knights Templar in that state.

——Because the boiler at the Water Works sprung a leak and it took a couple of weeks to get every thing to work right again, the Watchman does a half a column of figuring to show that the Bellefonte Cemetery should not be taken care of properly.

——Senator Wallace who has been ill for some time, has been reported in the Western part of the state as being dead. When the time for electing a U. S. Senator comes 'round we imagine he'll be one of the liviest corpses that Clymen or Buckalew ever saw.

TO INVALIDS.—Dr. Jackson can still be consulted at Garman's Hotel in Bellefonte for two days next week. Wednesday and Thursday, December 9th and 10th If sick do not fail to see him N. B. The Doctor is at Philipsburg from Dec. 2d to 8th, Loyd House.

——Mr E. H. Ellsworth, of the Philipsburg Journal, has been in town for several days, attending court as a juror. We never had the pleasure of meeting him before, and we're sorry for it, because he is an agreeable entertaining fellow as can be found in a day's travel.

SUDDEN DEATH OF A DEAF MUTE.—On Thanksgiving day, Mr. James Mayes, brother of John Mayes, Esq., of Houserville, a deaf mute, who has been a resident of Boalsburg for many years, dropped dead on the road near the latter place. He was walking along the turnpike near the Oak Hall Foundry, and, in sight of several parties who were only a few rods distant, dropped suddenly upon his face. The persons immediately ran to him, but before they arrived he had expired. He was about seventy years of age, and, up to the time of his death, appeared to be in his usual good health.

——The Mountain City Band serenaded many of our citizens on Thanksgiving day including ourselves, and won the compliments of the crowd of men, women and children who listened to them. In front of our office they performed some excellent new pieces that we have not heard them play before, and their old ones sounded as well as new, they were played so perfectly, in such excellent time and beautiful harmony. "Practice makes perfect" the saying is and our Band show they have not practiced in vain. They certainly deserve to be encouraged for the patience and preseverance they have shown under the difficulties they have been placed, and they are rapidly winning a reputation that they may well be proud of.

——There was a new pavement laid in front of D. M. Wagner's residence on High street, during the fall, which is a very great improvement so far as it goes; but where the new joins the old pavement, near Bush's Arcade, there is an offset which is very dangerous to pedestrians, especially to ladies, several of whom have fallen there already—one or two were quite seriously hurt. There is no doubt but what it will be worse when the pavement becomes covered with ice, and we would respectfully ask the borough authorities to have the nuisance remedied at once, before someone gets a leg or an arm broken at the borough's expense. There is also a similar obstruction in front of Mrs. Awl's house, near the Episcopal Church on Allegheny street.

——In the Bush House block and near to the railroad depot is one of the most complete grocery stores to be found in this City mit the beautiful spring. Is there any article that you cannot find at your regular place of dealing? Go to Sechler & Co., and there you will be sure to find it. There is no article of West India Goods or Groceries that he does not keep. He was never known to say will it pay to keep this or that line of goods? but do my customers want them? if they do I shall keep them whether they pay or not.

It is worth while for any one to visit his beautiful store if for nothing else, to see how clean a grocery store can be kept and how beautiful such goods can be arranged. He does an immense trade therefore his goods are always fresh and new. If our friends from the country will call and see this model store, we know they will be sure to buy, and if they will say that they saw this notice of it in the REPUBLICAN, they will confer a favor upon us.

THE COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Court convened on Monday, the 23d day of November, Judges Mayer and Orvis both being on the bench for the first two days, though during the remainder of the week Judge Orvis alone presided. The week was devoted entirely to criminal business, of which a large amount was disposed of. Our Additional Law Judge has a faculty of getting through with business which ought to be appreciated as to its effect upon the county treasury. We note only such cases as were disposed of in some way, paying no attention to the large number of bills acted upon by the Grand Jury, but which have not been brought up in court for trial.

On Monday the case of the Com. vs. Thomas Loughery was called up, and was made the subject of a contest which is to determine the validity of all the business done at the August and November terms of Court. The defendant's Counsel, Messrs. Alexander and Yocum, moved to quash the indictment, and also the array of Grand Jurors for August term and of Traverse Jurors for November term. There were a number of allegations in support of the motion, among them that no order of Court—as the counsel insist the law requires—was issued at April term, fixing the time for holding the terms of Court throughout the year; that the designated oath was not administered to the Jury Commissioners; that the jury wheel was not in the proper custody—it being kept in the County Commissioners' office; that unauthorized persons assisted in filling the jury wheel; that outside parties were permittted to pass in and out of the room where the filling was going on, during the progress of that work; that after the wheel was filled it was not sealed as the law directs, not having impressed upon it the respective seals of the Sheriff and Jury Commissioners. Considerable testimony was taken to support these propositions.

TUESDAY, 24.

The taking of evidence on the motion to quash was concluded. The case was then argued by Messrs. Yocum and Alexander, in support of the motion, and by Messrs. Furst and Beaver, against it. The opinion of the Court was delivered by his Honor, Judge Mayer, overruling the motion to quash the endictment and the juries, and asserting the Court's actual and legal existence. For a defunct tribunal—as if one position taken by Messrs. Alexander and Yocum is correct it ought to be—it certainly exhibited remarkable vigor on this occasion. This test case goes to the Supreme Court, and its final determination will be looked for with considerable interest. It was agreed, on the part of the Commonwealth, that the testimony taken in this case should be applied to any other on the docket which it might be desired to take to the Supreme Court, on the grounds laid in this motion.

The case of the Com. vs. Thomas Loughery was then put upon trial, and the jury found Thomas guilty, but the sentence was deferred.

WEDNESDAY, 25.

Com. vs. Robt. Taylor, violation of liquor law. Tried by jury. Verdict guilty of selling liquor without a license and to men of intemperate habits. There were two indictments of similar tenor. Sentence deferred to Jan. term. Hoy and Potter, D. A., for Com., Alexander for deft.

Com. vs. D. W. Butler, violation of liquor law. After the trial before a jury had proceeded for some time, the deft. concluded to plead guilty to selling liquor without license and to minors, and the plea was accepted. Sentenced to pay a fine of $60, and the costs of prosecution, and to spend ten days—including Thanksgiving—in the county jail.

Same vs. same, keeping gambling house. The men in this county who are a terror to evil-doers—especially liquor sellers—seem to have "gone for" Mr. Butler with special energy. He kept a little whiskey hole at Eagleville, and had a back room—there were only two rooms in his whole establishment—where parties went and played cards for the drinks, not a very unusual custom at such places, we presume. He was technically guilty of keeping a gambling house, and the jury so decided, and the Court made him pay $25, and costs for this offence.

Com. vs. George Keller, violation of liquor law; Deft. plead guilty to selling without lisence, and was sentenced to pay $60 fine and costs.

Com. vs. Jacob Manassas, violation of liquor law; Deft, plead guilty to selling without license and to minors; not yet sentenced.

Com. vs. Simon Baum, violation of liquor law. Deft. waived presentment and finding of a bill by the Grand Jury, and plead guilty to nine indictments. He is a youthful German who used to keep a saloon in the corner of the Bush House block, but has since left the county, though not soon enough to escape the penalty for violated law. He has not been long on this side of the Atlantic, and cannot understand the laws of a country which restrict a man's indulgence in lager beer and things concomitant. Judge Orvis enlightened him considerably by imposing a fine upon certain counts of two of the indictments only, $400 fine and costs. The Judge also politely and hospitally invited him to return to the county and sell some more liquor, when he promised to sentence him proportionately upon the remaining indictments, and make a very wise man of him. The young man seemed to appreciate the Judge's kindness, but thinks educational privileges in this county are very expensive.

Com. vs. John Stewart, violation of liquor law; plead guilty and sentenced to pay $50 and costs.

Com. vs. Jno. Berger, violation of liquor law; plead guilty, not yet sentenced.

Com. vs. F. Berger violation of liquor law; plead guilty and sentenced to pay $50 and costs.

Com. vs. John McKinney, larceny. John is a rather handsome, hearty, and bright looking boy, but a bad egg, probably, fourteen or fifteen years old He went into the blacksmithshop of Michael Aults, when no one was present, and carried away a shot gun. Michael got track of his gun, after some time, and went to the house of the boy's mother. The lad, seeing him coming, like the wicked man, fled to the woods, and the gun, which was in the house, was voluntarily delivered up by the mother. It was also stated, though not permitted to be put in evidence, that the mother wished Mr. Aults to have the boy arrested, that he might be sent to the house of correction, as she could not control him. The Jury found him guilty. Gen. Beaver represented the Com., Mr. Fortney was appointed by the court to conduct the defence, and was assisted by Mr. Furst. Sentence deferred.

In making the announcement that the court would adjourn over Thanksgiving day, the Judge seemed inclined to be facetiously thankful over the victory his party achieved at the recent elections.

FRIDAY, 27.

Com. vs. Reuben Richards, violation of liquor law; deft. waived presentment and finding of a true bill by Grand Jury and plead guilty; sentence deferred till next Monday.

Com. vs. Harry Kepheart, assault and battery. Mr. Kepheart is a young man employed as clerk in the store of Delong and Ligget, at Eagleville. Patric Raradan is an irrepressible Hibernian, whom the firm above-named and their clerk accuse of often coming into the store and interfering between them and their customers, and of being impertinent and troublesome generally. One day, when Patrick was in the store, he and Mr. Delong got into a dispute, when the latter ordered the former out of doors. Patrick would not go, and alleged that there were not enough men connected with the establishment to put him out, and Mr. Delong concluded, that he, at least, was probably not equal to the emergency. Hereupon Mr. Kepheart substituted himself in place of his employer, and he and Pat. engaged in wordy warfare, in which they called each other liars. Mr. Kepheart eventually found that the most vigorous language was inadequate to express his feelings, so he jumped upon and over the counter, and went for that saucy Milesian. He struck Patrick several times, when the two clinched and fell to the floor. Getting up Patrick went out of doors, on being ordered to do so, and dared Kepheart out to finish the combat, which the latter did not care to do, so Pat. went and had him arrested. The Jury found the deft. not guilty, but required him to pay one-half the costs, and the prosecutor, Patrick Raradan, the other half. Love for Com. Hoy for deft.

Com. vs. Geo. Gates, indicted for assault and battery, assault with intent to do greivous bodily injury, and assault with intent to kill. This was an interesting case, the endictment having been found at Aug. sessions, against Geo. and Annie Gates. The Com. decided to ask leave to enter a nolle-prosequi as to Mrs. Gates, and proceeded only against George. The prosecutor was a man named Hiram Bauermaster—with an alias—about whose antecedents little seems to be known, though he appears to have led more or less of a vagabond life, going about the country playing the violin for some sort of show, of which he and a companion were the proprietors, and for which the sole performers. He was for a short time employed by Mr. Gates, when he made the acquaintance of the latter's daughter, "the fair Ophelia." This young lady, who is about seventeen years old, and interesting in appearance, is said to have suffered a serious injury some years ago, since which time she has been subject to occasional aberrations of mind. She alleges that Bauermaster wished her to elope with him, and threatened to cut her heart out if she would not go. On another occasion, when he was about leaving, he told her he should return for her in two weeks and two days, and if she then did not go he would kill her. She asked what if she should be married meanwhile? He said in that case he would saturate things with coal oil, while she was in bed, and burn up the house, with her and all others that were in it These threats, if her story is true, seem to have made a powerful impression upon the mind of the timid and partially demented girl. One evening about the time fixed by Bauermaster for his return, Ophelia was out doors, when she says she saw a man between her and the door.

Taking this to be Bauermaster, come to execute his threat, she seems to have lost her senses, and fled to the woods, where she remained for two nights and a day, with nothing to eat. She was discovered accidentally, by a neighbor on the second day. There are mysterious circumstances connected with this affair, such as the girl's declarations to her future husband, and his allegations in that connection, if he said what one witness swears he did. Yet any other explanation than the girl's statement seems to be unsatisfactory. The theory of the commonwealth's counsel that she went to the woods to meet young Baily, who then worked for her father and to whom she has since been married, is untenable. There was no obstacle to their union, and no reason for thus anticipating more comfortable matrimonial arrangements. Meantime, the family and the neighborhood were alarmed, and diligent search was made for the missing girl, who was believed to have been abducted by Bauermaster. On the morning she was found, Bauermaster and his comrade reappeared in the neigborhood. Mr. Gates had reached the house of Wm. Myers, where his daughter was, when it was announced that the two were approaching. Mr. Gates handed his daughter a pistol, —which is described as being a small four-shooter—telling her to defend herself. Observing that she trembled, he took the pistol from her, and ran out of doors and after Bauermaster, and shot at him twice. Whether he intended to hit the man or not was a mooted point, the defence alleging that he only wished to scare him so that he would leave the country, still believing him to have been the cause of his daughter's absence from home, and that he so stated at the time. There was also a discrepancy in the accounts of witnesses as to the distance the two were apart when the shooting took place, one party making it so great that it would have been impossible to do any injury with such a weapon.

The case of the Com. vs Geo. Gates was continued, and occupied the greater portion of the day. The jury found the deft. guilty only on the first count of the indictment, that charging him with simple assault and battery. Fortney and Spangler for Com., Beaver and Furst for deft.

Sometimes these caps do not explode, and one of them which failed to do so was undergoing an examination in the hands of John Malee, when he accidently struck it lightly against a stove exploding the cap and tearing off two fingers and lacerating a thumb.—Journal.

MARRIED

On Thursday, Nov 26th, 1874, by Rev. W. M. Meminger, Dr. J. F. Larimer, of Lock Haven, to Miss Sadie Curtin, daughter of Mr. John Curtin, of Bellefonte.

The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's uncle—Ex-Governor Curtin—at five o'clock on Thursday afternoon, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The bridesmaids were Misses Melissa Curtin, Nora Thompson, Maggie Beaver and Ella Hale; the groomsmen were Messrs. A. G. Curtin, Jr., John I. Potter, T. C. Hipple and Wm. P. Duncan. The spacious parlors of the Governor's handsome residence were thronged with guests before the bridal party made their appearance, affording an opportunity to examine the gems of art, and the wonderful cabinet of curiosities, gleaned by Mr. Curtin and his family from the galleries of almost every country in Europe. When the bridal party entered and the minister, in the presence of the brilliant assemblage, advanced to perform the solemn rites, a scene of rare interest and pleasure was presented. Congratulations followed, after which refreshments were served.

The very large number of wedding presents were singularly elegant, tasteful and serviceable. The bride and groom took the evening train for an extended trip through the Eastern cities.

DIED.

In Boggs twp., on the 27th ult., Mr. Wm. Iddings, in the 76th year of his age.
